It's Herman's, Not Old Gene's

Politics is not an exact science.

And political patterns often are cut by the scissors of expediency and sewn by the needles of events.

Georgia's dusty, throat-weary political runners are nearing the finish line of a primary in which thousands will not vote at all, the only possible protest against candidates and conditions.

If more than 60 percent of the registration goes to the polls on June 28 it will be mildly surprising.

About the only development of any interest is the slow appearance of the Herman Talmadge faction.

It includes most of the Gene Talmadge faction, but it clearly shows the process of political evolution. It is Herman's faction, a fact which some of the old timers who went whooping in Old Gene's train do not find palatable.

Their voices are raised even in the crowds before the platforms where M. E. Thompson speaks. They cry out for the old epithets and the old shibboleths and they deplore the new.

Candidate Thompson quite naturally has seized upon them. He waves them like banners and he caresses their names as he reveals that "another old Gene Talmadge stalwart" has left Gene's son. It is good politics to do so. Now and then one of these will be heard on the radio, lamenting the days that are gone and mourning for the old Jerusalem of Old Gene's time.

Acceptance

But, there seems to be no lamenting in the Talmadge headquarters. I have not been there, since I am sitting this one out, but on occasional journeys down the street I have seen no lanterns burning in the windows and I have heard no wistful watcher crying like a muezzin from his tower, "As long as the lights in the window burn, the wandering sinner may return." There has been none of that.

Indeed, I encountered one of the Talmadge leaders on the street and I asked him about those whose voices had been heard raised in the Thompson tent, thinking to see him wince.

"How many of that kind have left Herman?" I asked.

"Not enough," he said. "There are not many of them. They were the sort who always got Gene in trouble. They were the ones who took him off on tangents. They are not popular in their counties. They want to have everything their way or they won't play at all. They have a lot of enemies and they think election time is the time to punish them. They stir up more trouble than they are worth. That's why I say not enough of them have left."

New Pattern

"Herman," his friends said early in his career, "is a lot different from his daddy."

"Herman," they said, "is smarter and more stable than his papa."

His friends have been saying that for years, and, in many respects, it is true. He has a better concept of the state's needs and he is able to do more for the agricultural and industrial development of the state than his father. His father had almost a contempt for civic clubs and their members. Herman has courted them and their aspirations, local and state.

Even his false use of the race issue and his defense of the harmful county unit system, which only Georgia has of the 48 states, is handled almost with kid gloves, compared with his father's reckless, ruthless methods.

His faction has moved over, so to speak. It includes many who would never have voted for his father. It slowly is becoming a 1950 model and it reflects, for the first time, the governor and not his father.

Outlook

The outlook remains heavily weighted in his favor. There are in Georgia about 100,000 people who would not vote for a Talmadge if he came wearing a heavenly halo and escorted by supporting angels. M. E. Thompson, by one of the most aggressive campaigns in Georgia's history, has aroused some of these to work and to enthusiasm.

But he has not got all of them. Many of them will not warm to him. They will be among the thousands who simply will not vote for anyone for governor. They know our way is not to change things until they become intolerable.

It looks as if the Talmadge forces are assured now of at least 100 counties with a contest going on in about 40 more. If Thompson is to get his ground swell started he must hurry. Meanwhile, the most interesting development is that of the Herman Talmadge faction which will not mind if a few more of the old mavericks quit.

Receivership Hearing Is Set For Tuesday in Transit Tie-Up

Mitchell Sale Prospects Brighten; Strike Vote Is Called in Macon

Atlanta's strike-bound transit system is under temporary jurisdiction of Fulton Superior Court Judge Jesse M. Wood, with a "show cause" hearing scheduled at 10 a. m. Tuesday which could result in the Georgia Power Company being placed in receivership.

John M. Elliott, International Vice President of the trolleymen's union, was back in Atlanta Friday, but he and local union leader Jesse Walton reported the situation was "status quo."

Possibility of eventual purchase of the transit system by the W. E. Mitchell group looked brighter Friday, as the power company announced it would not set a "deadline" on its commitment to Mitchell.

Mitchell expressed confidence his group could "get together with the AFL transit union on a contract." Elliott said Friday night, however, that he had received no word from Mitchell.

Judge Wood, following a preliminary hearing Friday on a complaint petition by Mrs. Winifred P. Patterson, naming the power company and union as co-defendants, ordered company and union to appear in his court Tuesday to show cause why the company should not be placed in receivership.

Judge Wood pointed out the court "may be very limited in its powers," and consensus at the preliminary informal hearing was that the court could not restore buses to operation except by agreement of both defendants.

Meanwhile, the transit system

Basing Point Bill Vetoed As Peril to Competition

WASHINGTON, June 16—(UP)—President Truman Friday vetoed the controversial "basing point" bill for fear it would cut competition and thus hurt the public and small business.

The measure would have permitted manufacturers anywhere to absorb freight costs and sell at "delivered prices" as long as they acted independently. It also would have allowed them to quote special low prices to individuals to meet competition if conspiracy, collusion, monopoly or fraud were not involved.

Mr. Truman told the Senate in his veto message that the measure was far from the original congressional intent of clarifying pricing practices.

The bill would have reduced "the protection afforded the public by the anti-trust laws," he said, and for this and other reasons he was convinced it "would not be in the public interest."

He said it might have handicapped the Federal Trade Commission's moves against price conspiracies and discouraged enforcement of the Robinson-Patman Act, which protects small businesses against price discriminations.

The legislation was demanded by manufacturers after the Supreme Court outlawed the basing point system in the cement industry in 1948. This caused confusion among many industries which long had quoted similar prices to widely separated customers based on certain shipping points.

Big business, Republicans and some prominent Democrats contended the bill would have removed uncertainty about pricing policies and aided small business.

But other Democrats, plus some small business, farm and labor groups, charged it would end competition and force many independent merchants out of business.

STARTING VACATION

Alpharetta Family Survives Butane Explosion in Home

By ALBERT RILEY

It was the first day of his vacation, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Spruell were seated comfortably in the living room of their quiet home near Alpharetta Friday.

Their sons, Billy Lee, 11, and Jimmy, 6, were playing nearby, waiting for the family to go into their noon-day meal, ready on the table in the kitchen.

Suddenly the floor bucked beneath them—and WHAM!

When they picked themselves up from the floor, miraculously unhurt, and looked around them, them, their six-room home was a shambles. Tables, chairs and lamps were overturned, windows shattered and screens blown out. The house was blown almost off its foundations.

Badly frightened, but satisfied that no one was hurt, Mrs. Spruell ran quickly outside to shut off their butane gas tank.

Ruefully surveying the wreckage later but happy they all were safe, Spruell said he blamed the explosion on butane gas. Although no gas was turned on inside the house, he said he figured the blast was caused by an accumulation of gas leakage, probably from a pipe in the cellar.

It was the cellar and the room above it in the rear of the house that suffered the most damage.

Spruell, a night guard at Fulton County's Bellwood prison camp, said he had spent $8,000 remodeling the house, on Kimball Bridge Road, last year. He said he had

He installed the butane gas, he said, shortly after another house in the Alpharetta area was wrecked by a similar explosion last year.

Spruell shuddered to think what might have happened had there been any open flames about when the blast occurred.

Cheerfully straightening out the household wreckage, Mrs. Spruell breathed a prayer of thanks that the family was still alive and unhurt.

"We can always get another house, somehow," she said.

She was looking at a pallet on the floor of one of the worst damaged rooms where little Jimmy had been asleep a few minutes before the explosion.

There was something symbolic in that room.

A picture of the Saviour had been blown off the wall. The glass over the picture was broken—but the picture was unhurt.

Atom Worker Seized as Spy

Possible Death Penalty Faces Ex-Young Communist Leaguer

By EDWARD RANZAL
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 16—A 28-year-old former Young Communist League member who, while a member of the Army in 1945 working at the atomic bomb project in Los Alamos, N. M., passed on atomic secrets destined for Russia, was arrested Friday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for espionage.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald, David Greenglass, a machinist, was held in $100,000 bail. He was charged with handing highly restricted information concerning the atomic bomb to Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist, recently indicted for passing information from the convicted British spy, Klaus Fuchs, to the Russian Intelligence Service.

Because the overt acts took place during wartime—the information was passed before the bomb was tested or dropped at Hiroshima—Greenglass faces a maximum penalty of death.

Since Gold's arrest last May 23, the machinist, who is married and has two small children, told FBI agents: "I thought of running away or committing suicide."

Explaining his traitorous acts, Greenglass said: "I felt it was gross negligence on the part of the United States not to give Russia the information about the atom bomb because she was an ally."

This was the third arrest in the Russian spy ring since Fuchs talked to FBI agents in London. The first was Gold. On Thursday the FBI seized Alfred Dean Slack, 44-year-old Syracuse chemist, who at one time lived in Atlanta, Ga. He admitted giving samples of a secret high explosive to Gold.

Slack, who worked at Kingsport, Tenn., where the secret explosive was manufactured and later on the Manhattan Atomic Project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., is being held in Utica on $100,000 bail for transfer to Knoxville for trial.

The espionage complaint against Greenglass was signed in Albuquerque, N. M., and Commissioner McDonald set a removal hearing.

He admitted to the FBI that in 1938 he joined the Young Communist League but did not indicate the duration of his membership.

He was inducted into the Army on April 5, 1943, and received an honorable discharge on Feb. 29, 1946. From August, 1944, until he was discharged he was assigned as a machinist at the Atomic Bomb Project in Los Alamos.

Meanwhile, in Pasadena, Cal., Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, a Russian-born scientist who worked for three years at California Institute of Technology's super secret jet propulsion laboratory was arrested Friday on charges that he concealed membership in the Communist party. Charged with perjury and fraud against the Government, Dr. Weinbaum was held on $5,000 bail.

Summer Grip Due To Hold On

You probably thought the mercury hit 100 Friday—but it didn't quite make it. The Weather Bureau says the thermometer only reached 90.

What's in store for today? You guessed it—more of the same. It'll be fair—and hot—Saturday and Sunday, with a chance—a slight one—of cooling afternoon thundershowers on both days.

But the Ol' Weatherman can't make any definite promise about the showers.

He just says that the high today will be 90 again, with a low of 70. The same thing is on tap for Sunday. Friday's temperatures ranged from a high of 90 to a low of 69.

Senate Body Okays Billion In Arms Aid

President's Powers Cut Under Request

By C. P. TRUSSELL
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 16—Acting jointly and with unexpected speed, the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees approved tentatively Friday an authorization of $1,222,500,000—all that was asked—to give military assistance to non-Communist countries through a second year. A final and confirming vote was scheduled for Monday.

In its present form the authorization would modify somewhat the powers that had been requested for the President, but not to an extent, it was viewed widely, to which he would object.

At particular issue was the phase wherein the President would be authorized to divert up to 10 percent of over-all funds to building up the defense strength of any country that appeared to become an aggression target. This would apply to nations members or nonmembers of the North Atlantic Mutual Defense Pact.

As now proposed, the President would be authorized to utilize up to 10 percent of over-all funds at any crisis point in Western Europe, not elsewhere, under these conditions:

If the emergency affected seriously the security of the North Atlantic area.

If it developed in a country whose increased ability to defend itself would contribute to the preservation of peace and security also of the United States.

This phase of the program remains subject to further study and possible modification.

Besides the $1,222,500,000 of "new money" and contract authorizations, the Senate committees approved tentatively the use, in the fiscal year starting next July 1, of an estimated $214,000,000 of funds that would be unobligated from the $1,314,000,000 arms aid appropriation made last year.

Further, tentative approval was given to the transferring of $250,000,000 of excess United States military equipment on top of the $450,000,000 worth authorized previously.

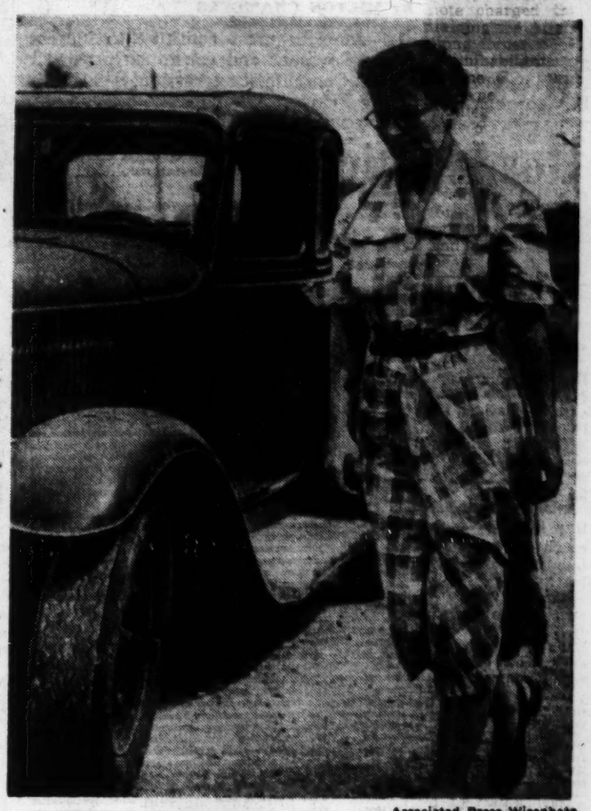

Bridges Loses His Citizenship

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16—(INS)—The citizenship of Harry Bridges, Australian-born West Coast CIO Longshoremen's Union leader, was ordered revoked in a decision issued Friday by Federal Judge George B. Harris of San Francisco.

The order is based on Bridges' conviction last April 3 on a charge that he lied when he denied he was or ever had been a member of the Communist Party at the time he was granted U. S. citizenship. He was naturalized in 1945 in the Superior Court of San Francisco.

U. S. Envoy Begins Tour in Russia

MOSCOW, June 16—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk left Friday on the Trans-Siberian Express for his 5,000-mile round-trip to the Lake Baikal area. He is accompanied by his son, Roger, and Embassy Secretary Richard Service. The party expects to return June 26.

Reds' Trieste Charge Denied in U. S. Note

Alleged Pact Violations Called Blow to Peace

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 16—The United States rejected emphatically Friday Soviet charges that we, the British and French had violated the Italian peace treaty in respect to Trieste.

A note denying specific alleged violations was delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Kirk in reply to a Russian note of April 20.

The State Department note characterized the Soviet charges as "obviously designed to sow confusion and impede such mutually satisfactory agreement and hence injure the cause of peace."

State Department authorities said similar notes were delivered also by the United Kingdom and by France.

The note declared that responsibility for any lack of implementation of the peace treaty "lies squarely upon the Soviet government whose conduct following the conclusion of the treaty rendered the settlement envisaged therein impossible of execution."

Referring to the Soviet demand that we "liquidate" a naval base and naval installations in Trieste, the note declared "the United States and United Kingdom have never had a naval base or naval installations of any kind at Trieste."

A State Department spokesman said no repairing or refitting facilities for United States or British naval craft are maintained in Trieste. He said no naval barracks or specialized workshops are maintained there, nor are the port facilities directed by naval technicians. The total British and American naval personnel in Trieste amounts to 11 persons, he said.

Referring to Soviet charges of "military maneuvers and other military measures" being carried out by the Allied forces in Trieste, the note said that mainttenance of small Allied contingents there was to assist in administration. It said the maintenance was "pursuant to the obligations assumed by the United States and United Kingdom under the treaty."

The department spokesman said that the so-called "maneuvers" were solely exercises always considered necessary in peacetime troop training. The meaning of "other military measures," he said, was unclear.

He added, "It is obvious to any observer that zone A is not being put in a state of defense and that no fortifications are being built." The only airfield in the zone, he said, consisted of a hangar and a landing strip suited only for light liaison aircraft and not in any sense a military airfield.

The Soviet note charged that the cost of maintaining the Anglo-American occupying forces is being born by the inhabitants of Trieste, and that the Communal Council bears the expense of police force upkeep, allegedly spending more than half of its budget for this purpose.

The department spokesman termed these charges "particularly surprising." He said the facts are that expenses for the occupying forces are being borne by the United States and British Governments.

U.S. Prosperity Hems Reds, George Says

By MILTON CHAMBERS
Constitution Staff Writer

MACON, June 16—America must continue to increase production with full employment and continued prosperity if this country is to check Communist aggression, Sen. Walter F. George declared here Friday.

Georgia's senior Senator was given a rousing ovation as he addressed the Georgia Vocational Association in a nonpolitical speech during his only visit to Georgia before the June 28 primary. He did not mention his opponent, Alex McLennan, nor the primary.

Saturday the Senator will be honored at his home town of Vienna when a monument will be unveiled, commemorating his contribution to vocational education.

Introduced here by Macon Attorney Charles Bloch, George warned that the world is "in a crisis of unprecedented gravity," and pointed out that present U. S. policies use up about 70 percent of the nation's budget to contain Communism.

"Only by staying at top production will this country be able to keep up the present expenditures for foreign aid and our defense program," he said.

Therefore, a depression here "would seriously damage the hopes of free peoples everywhere for world order and peace," he said.

George told the vocational teachers that they are working "in the front lines of the cold war," because "the burden of easing today's situation lies no longer in the dimplomats but in the contribution that every farm boy in the country can give.

He noted with satisfaction that Georgia ranks first in the nation with 60,442 persons enrolled in Federally aided vocational agriculture classes.

George stated that in order to preserve our "living, dynamic economy as a convincing proof that men can have two ideals of freedom and security at the same time, all the young men and women in this country must be trained to make their own success."

Earlier in the day, the more than 1,200 members of the Association heard Gov. Talmadge promise full financing of the Minimum Foundation Program within the next two years.

"We have gone a long way towards improving our schools," the Governor said, "raising the amount spent annually per pupil from $98 in 1947-48 to an all-time high of $119.58 at present. This figure is still far short of the national average of $195."

Talmadge said he would work, if re-elected, to see that agriculture and industrial trades were taught in every rural high school in the State. He also promised area vocational schools, locally directed; expansion of trade and industrial and distributive education, and promised to make available all funds allocated for that purpose.

New officers elected by the Georgia Vocational Association are: George I. Martin, of Tifton, President; W. F. Burke, of Rome, Secretary; T. G. Walton, of Atlanta, Treasurer, and Vice Presidents E. H. Cheek, of Blakely; Charles Hudgins, of Athens; Mrs. Jessie Kitchens, of Atlanta; Howard Waters, of Albany; Alfred L. Davis, of Atlanta, and Mrs. J. E. Parrish, of Macon.

Road-Letting Hits Peak as Voting Nears

Just 11 days before the State Democratic primary, Gov. Talmadge's administration Friday hit a new peak in letting road contracts.

Bids were opened on 44 projects covering 42 of the State's 159 counties at an estimated cost of $3,250,000.

It was the biggest contract letting in Talmadge's term and one of the biggest—especially in the number of contracts—in State history.

Former Acting Gov. Thompson staged similar big road-lettings just before the 1948 primary. Road contracts have been used consistently in Georgia politics to woo individual counties.

Actual contracts will be signed next week, after bids are checked. The projects by counties, with apparent low bidders.

35 Georgia Nurses Attend Polio Clinic

"Polio" is a word with shivers and goose-pimples on it to some people.

But to 35 starched, efficient young women now convening at Grady Hospital, it calls up a vision of a new frontier in nursing.

Delegates from hospitals all over Georgia and a scattering of private duty nurses, Negro and white, are learning how to take the "scare" out of polio at the Third Polio Nursing Institute here.

Along with practical demonstrations of hot-pack treatments, the nurse-students get instructions on the proper psychological approach to victims of infantile paralysis . . . and to their often frantic parents and friends.

"Graduates of our three-day institute will share what they've learned with their communities," Miss Mary L. Almond, Atlanta private duty nurse and institute chairman, said.

Miss Katherine Pope, Superintendent of Grady's Polio Unit, explained, "Few Georgia nurses have training in the special skills of nursing infantile paralysis patients. We hope there will never be a polio epidemic in our state—but if there should be, we need to be ready for it."

The Institute, which will end Saturday with a field trip to Warm Springs, is sponsored by the American Red Cross in co-operation with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Talmadge and Thompson To Speak In Atlanta Area Monday Night

Atlantans wishing to see the two major gubernatorial candidates on the stump this year will get their best chance Monday night.

Gov. Talmadge will speak in DeKalb County, at the Druid Hills High School, at 8 p. m.

Former Acting Gov. Thompson will speak in Marietta at 8:30 p. m.

Neither Talmadge nor Thompson has scheduled a stump speech in Fulton County this year. All of their Saturday afternoon rallies are broadcast over WSB, and they and their supporters have made appeals here over WSB during the week.

Talmadge Spot-Paving Assailed by Thompson

By KATHERINE BARNWELL
Constitution Staff Writer

THOMSON, June 16—Fast-traveling Candidate M. E. Thompson, who has put his ailing vocal chords back to work again, charged here Friday night that Talmadge was trying to buy votes by "spot paving."

Addressing about 300 people on the McDuffiee County courthouse lawn, Thompson declared:

"My opponent has his henchmen going about Georgia pouring a little asphalt in holes, just like they did here in Thomson. He thinks that ought to make you vote for him. He's trying to fool the people."

The former Acting Governor, who was introduced here by Johnny Morris, candidate for State Representative, drew a laugh from the crowd with the tongue-in-cheek remark:

"After 140 speeches my doctors advised me my throat was sore and needed a little rest. Now I note in the press that my opponent, who has less than 40 speeches, is hollering 'me, too.'"

After "resting" his voice for five rallies, Thompson loudly lambasted the Talmadge Administration both here and at Washington and Tignall in Wilkes County. He said he was "beat last time by a name."

"This time," he said, "Georgians are not going to vote for a name only. They are going to compare records and platforms and elect M. E. Thompson."

Graham Simpson, Washington merchant, introduced Thompson to about 350 persons gathered on the courthouse grounds.

Randall Evans, former Speaker of the House of Representatives from McDuffie County, shared the platform with Thompson at Tignall, which warmly welcomed its first gubernatorial campaign rally in more than 20 years.

Nearly 100 people stood in the hot sun or in the scarcely cooler shade provided by the porches of a clump of stores.

J. J. Jones, Superintendent of Tignall schools, introduced Thompson there, but nine-year-old Stuart Adams told smiling bystanders:

"I wish I could introduce him."

Thompson introduced Evans, who assured the crowd that this campaign was "a two-man race, the kind Talmadge supporters always have feared.

"That," he declared, "is what's giving the Talmadge crowd the nightmares now."

In an eloquently drawn parallel, Evans compared Thompson and Talmadge to David and Goliath. Thompson, like David, he said, was fighting on the side of righteousness, and would win the battle.

After the rally, Thompson and his wife were led to a luncheon table laden by 30-odd different dishes, including six kinds of meat.

Pleased with his royal reception at Tignall and other small towns, Thompson mused:

"I'm visiting places no candidate ever visited before. That's what's burning up the opposition."

The former Acting Governor will conclude his rally-packed week with an address at 3:30 p. m. Saturday in Dublin.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

University Rejects Vote Holiday Plea

Summer students in the University System of Georgia won't get a holiday June 28.

The Young People's League for Better Government asked the System to close down its classes so that students and teachers could vote in the primary.

The Board of Regents' office Friday quoted an unanimous opinion of the Board on a similar request for an election day holiday in 1949. At that time the Georgia Education Association asked a two-day holiday so teachers and students could vote on the tax referendum to finance better schools.

"It is our unanimous opinion," said the Board, "that it is contrary to policies of the Board to grant holidays so that students in the University System may participate in politics or political campaigns. Therefore, the Board takes no action on this request."

Emory University will not have a holiday on election day either, officials said. In event individual students want to go home to cast their ballots, they will be permitted to do so, but there will be no general holiday, it was announced.

Urges City Hire Negroes

John H. Calhoun, Executive Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has asked City Council's Health and Sanitation Committee to open City employment gates to Negro citizens.

"We are just asking for opportunities for better jobs," he told Committeemen. "At the present time, our people are limited to laborers' jobs. We have plenty of men who could qualify as truck drivers and/or chauffeurs. We are asking that Negroes be upgraded."

Committee members took the request under advisement after a discussion during which some members said the matter should be considered on a City-wide basis.

Danish Orphan En Route to U. S.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 16—(AP)—Little Orphan Johnny left by plane Friday night for San Mateo, Cal.

There he will join wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Peter Leth-Nissen, who adopted him last Summer when their own child died suddenly while visiting in Denmark.

President Truman signed a special bill granting the three-year-old boy entry to the United States.

Athens Paper For Talmadge

M. E. Thompson continued to claim Clarke County, and Herman Talmadge claimed a good chance of taking this traditionally anti-Talmadge county Friday night, after the Athens Banner-Herald broke its 18-year precedent and indorsed a Talmadge for Governor.

John Greer, a campaign manager for Thompson, predicted the people of Clarke County, which has never supported Talmadge, will continue to vote against Talmadge and for progressive government.

Talmadge headquarters said Gov. Talmadge has a good chance of carrying Clarke County and that the Banner-Herald's attitude indicates Talmadge will carry more counties than he did in 1948.

Ballot Check Asked by Group

CEKLOR is checking up to see whether every county in Georgia has a real secret ballot this June 28.

This combined civic organization has asked all local civic clubs to check with local election officials to see that the secret ballot, as provided in the law passed by the Legislature recently, is used in their counties and that all voters have the protection afforded them by a secret ballot in this election.

McLennan Says George Too Late To Save Seat

Senatorial Candidate Alex McLennan, in a radio speech over WSB Friday night, declared Sen. George "cannot vote for the people for the simple reason that he is owned by big corporations that put up the money to influence the elections of 1926 and 1938."

On the eve of the unveiling of a statute to George at Vienna, McLennan said that the Senator "has decided to come home in an effort to save his own election, but it is too late now."

Attacking George's record in the Senate, McLennan quoted the following from a book entitled the "Current Biography from the Year 1943":

"In 1928, Walter George fought Senator Tom Walsh's resolution to investigate the power trust. In 1939, George assailed the Wage and Hour Law. He voiced opposition to the Russell amendment authorizing the Government's conscription of industry. In 1940, he led the fight for the kind of excess profits bill which was finally passed, a bill which, as one reporter pointed out, saved the Coca-Cola Company, Georgia's richest concern, about eleven million dollars a year in excess profits taxes it would have had to pay under the Treasury's original plan.

"In August, 1941, George gave up the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee to become chairman of the Finance Committee. One of his first moves was to indorse the suggestion that tax exemptions be reduced from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single persons. In May, 1943, he criticized the tax bill passed by the House for not employing the principle of equality of tax treatment. He promptly introduced a bill which would have collected the same percentage from both upper and lower tax brackets. His bill won the support of the National Association of Manufacturers and was eventually passed. The bill reported by his Senate Finance Committee made changes in the war contractors' renegotiation law that the Secretary of Treasury said opened the way for truly extortionate profits and held the seed for a national scandal. In 1942, he criticized lack of wage control but spoke against price ceilings."

Urges CIO Elect Friends of Labor

WASHINGTON, June 16—(U.P.) CIO President Philip Murray asked his political leaders Friday to raise a $1,000,000 war chest to help elect pro-labor candidates to Congress this Fall.

Jack Kroll, director of the CIO's Political Action Committee, said enemies of labor are spending "unlimited funds" to defeat candidates in sympathy with union legislative aims.

They spoke at a meeting of 350 CIO union presidents and PAC leaders who will direct the organization's drive to elect a pro-Labor Congress next November.

CONDUCT DENTAL COURSES HERE—Three speakers at a seminar Friday for Atlanta dentists are seen as they pointed out places in Georgia where similar courses were held during the week. Sponsored by the Georgia Dental Association, in co-operation with the Georgia Department of Health, the seminar features refresher courses for dentists. Sessions here were held in the Life Insurance Company of Georgia auditorium. From left to right: Dr. Joseph T. Hartsook, of the University of Michigan; Dr. Joseph F. Volker, Dean of the University of Alabama Dental School; and Dr. Steve A. Garrett, President of the Georgia Dental Association. Seminars also were held at Augusta, Waycross and Albany during the week.

Improvement Plan Best Step, Says One-Government Backer

W. Eugene Harrington, longtime advocate of "one government" as the tonic for Atlanta's growing pains, Friday indorsed the Plan of Improvement as the "biggest and finest step forward we can take in our lifetime."

Harrington voiced an opinion that he still thought the one-government proposal the ideal solution, but declared most of its supporters had or could come to the conclusion that it was impossible to achieve at the time.

The two-time president of Atlanta's Chambers of Commerce spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Optimist Club in the Ansley Hotel. He was introduced by G. Vinson Brownlee, a member of the Local Government Commission who prepared the plan after a year's study and effort.

Harrington described the only alternative to the plan is "for the community to remain as is—status quo." But he felt "the city cannot be allowed to build a Chinese wall around itself. And this is virtually what it is doing."

"If it is allowed to stand Atlanta is going to dry up," he commented.

He stated the only question those citizens in the affected areas who will vote on the plan in the June 28 primary need to ask themselves is "not how this will affect me personally but will the plan promote the welfare of all the people?"

He believed that every straight-thinking person should conclude their ultimate welfare depends mainly on Atlanta's progress.

The speaker reviewed the plan briefly stating that a person could talk endlessly on its details. The important thing, he declared is to study the type man on the commission and see if he deserves your confidence. "Personally I feel they measure up by any standards," he said.

President Blake Van Leer of Georgia Tech in a speech Friday night at Techwood Community Hall outlined the Plan of Improvement and termed it "one of the finest proposals ever to come before the people of Fulton County and Atlanta." He added the voters should give it their overwhelming support.

By improving the grade schools of this area, President Van Leer maintained the proposal would eventually improve the educational system of the whole region, including Georgia Tech.

Absentee Ballot Deadline Today

Noon Saturday is the deadline for applying for an absentee ballot, if you are going to be away from your voting precinct on June 28.

The absentee ballot may be obtained from the Ordinary or Registrar in your home county courthouse.

While the deadline would ordinarily fall on June 18, that date is on Sunday—and the courthouses close at noon on Saturday and remain closed until Monday morning.

Thompsonite Raps McGill's View of Race

McGill says in his column in The Constitution that "it looks as if the Talmadge forces are assured now of at least 100 counties . . ."

After reading an early edition of the paper, Greer retorted that Thompson has the race won or is winning it fast.

The Lanier County legislator said McGill "is either trying to run with the hare and write with the hounds or is entirely unaware of the situation in Georgia today."

Greer's statement in part:

"I vigorously disagree with Ralph McGill's analysis of the gubernatorial contest in today's Constitution. Among other things he has deliberately misstated facts. He said that there were about 100,000 people who would not vote for Talmadge if he came wearing a halo, when he knows that over 300,000 Georgians voted for Thompson against Talmadge two years ago.

"Before this race started I talked to Ralph McGill in his office. I told him Georgia needed a race on issues. He agreed with me but said at that time that it looked futile because with Roy Harris' help he thought Herman would win. Apparently Ralph has continued to listen to Roy.

"I believe I know as much about Georgia politics as either Ralph or Roy and I am confident that as of today Thompson has this race won or is winning so fast that neither side could definitely claim any 100 counties.

"I have always been fond of Ralph McGill and have had great faith in his integrity. But when he makes a wild statement that the Talmadge forces are assured of 100 counties, he is either trying to run with the hare and write with the hounds or is entirely unaware of the situation in Georgia today."

Improvement Vital to City, Albert Says

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of seven brief sketches designed to acquaint residents of Atlanta and Fulton County with the men responsible for drafting the "Plan of Improvement."

Dr. Allen D. Albert, Jr., is chairman of the Local Government Commission which drafted the "Plan of Improvement."

Allen Albert

Chairman of the Department of Sociology at Emory University, he has served as Vice Chairman of the Fulton County Planning Commission, as a member of the Atlanta Housing Authority, and on the Executive Committee of the State Advisory Committee to the State Board of Health. He is a former member of the Metropolitan Planning Commission and was a member of the Chamber of Commerce committee that drafted the bill creating that commission. A former member of the Board of Directors of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, he lives in Buckhead.

Dr. Albert gives as his reasons for indorsing the "Plan of Improvement" the following:

"The tremendous growth of Atlanta with the consequent demand for services and likewise consequent increases of costs, plus the need for close integration of the urban area and services makes the most efficient possible governmental administration essential. I believe in the 'Plan' that we have found an answer."

Police Hunt Thin Abductor

Police Saturday were seeking a "tall, thin man" allegedly driving a "jitney" auto after a 32-year-old Atlanta mother reported being abducted and criminally assaulted.

In a complaint made to police Friday, the woman, the mother of two small children, said she was taken towards Augusta by the driver after she hailed the auto Thursday morning in front of her home on Central Avenue.

She told Dets. J. E. Helms and W. M. Holland that the assault took place after she called her husband at the order of her abductor and reported "I'll be home in a little while." The abductor drove back to the city after midnight and shoved her from the car, she related.

Ex-GI Toughie Is Caught At German Girl's Home

MUNICH, Germany, June 16—(AP)—Bavaria's biggest German-American manhunt ended Friday in the meek surrender of jail-breaker Homer Cook under a bed at the apartment of his German girl friend.

His feet sticking out from under the bed finally betrayed big Homer, but he apparently was ready to give up anyway because of hunger, fatigue and a dangerously infected barb-wire cut.

The ex-GI tough guy from Muskogee, Okla., a 27-year-old former boxer, told his captors love for Anna Sporrer, 23, led him to make his third break out of the Dachau Army stockade three nights ago.

She was not at home when two American GI's and German police found him — as they suspected they might on the cherchez la femme theory—seeking a rendezvous with Anna in the apartment where she lives with an aunt.

"You don't have to use your pistols on me," big Homer told Corp. Albert Lezison, of Ashland, Ky.; Pfc. Emil Skaggs, of Ansted, W. Va., and German police who went to the apartment on a tip.

Authorities said the tip came from a chauffeur who reported Cook rang his doorbell by mistake while fumblingly trying to find Anna about 6 a. m.

Nearly 4,000 German police and American MP's had sought Homer on a wide-ranging three-day manhunt. After his first escape in April the trail led to Anna and his capture. The second time he was caught asleep, hungry and tired, in a freight yard.

This time Anna began to doubt that Homer was the kind of man she wanted to marry after all. He is due for trial in U. S. Court next week on about 20 assorted charges.

Farm Market Aid Cited By Talmadge

Constitution State News Service

HAWKINSVILLE, June 16—The best way to help farmers is to furnish them with markets for their crops so they can get top prices for what they raise, and the Talmadge administration is building such markets, Governor Talmadge said in a campaign speech here Friday night.

"We have furnished more money to build new farmers' markets and to expand existing markets than any other administration," Talmadge claimed. "We have supplied $625,000 for new markets and additions thus far, and $625,000 more will be available July 1."

Talmadge said his administration is helping Georgia's rapidly developing livestock industry by building a new laboratory at Tifton for the diagnosis of animal diseases.

The Governor said the forestry protection program in Georgia has been tripled and this program helps the farmers, particularly in soil conservation. He said many farmers are entering the tree-growing business on a large scale.

"One of the greatest enemies of the farmer is erosion," he continued. "We supplied $25,000 to the State Soil Conservation Committee to advance its work on the state level. We are furnishing farmers seedlings from three state nurseries to help put them into the tree-growing business. We produced 46,000,000 seedlings this year, more than double the amount ever before produced in a single year."

Negro Vote Seen Smaller

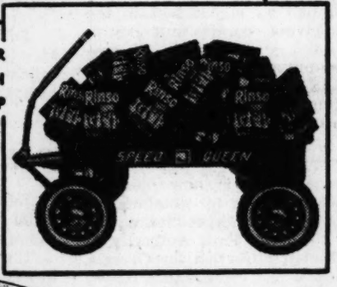

A survey of 118 of the 159 counties indicates a 10 percent decrease in Negro voters and a slight increase in white voters since 1948, the Associated Press finds.

If the trend continues, Georgia will have about one percent fewer voters—instead of an anticipated increase—than were registered in 1948, the AP said.

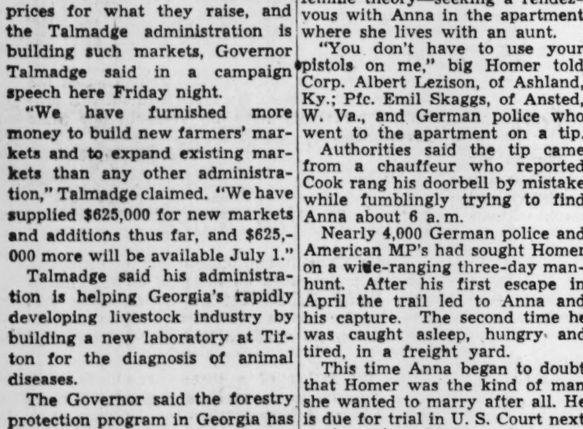

DeKalb YDC Slates Rally

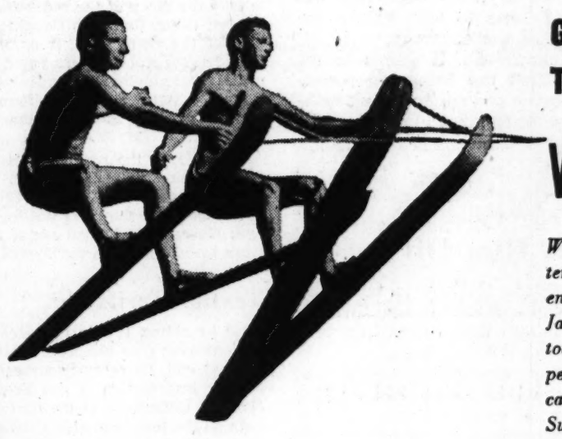

The re-organized Young Democrats Club of DeKalb County will sponsor a County-wide political rally at 2:30 p. m. next Saturday, June 24, at the West Ponce de Leon Grammar School.

J. O. Bowen, Jr., Chairman, said all candidates for office in DeKalb County have accepted invitations to attend. Rep. James C. Davis and his opponent for the Fifth District Congressional post, Wyman C. Lowe; four candidates for the Stone Mountain Superior Court judgeship, and 12 aspirants for three Representatives' posts are slated to be on the program. Scott Candler will deliver the welcoming address.

A Deserved Honor for Sen. George

The interest of Sen. Walter George in vocational education goes back to his college days when he feared he would be unable to complete his law course and wondered how he would earn a living.

He did, of course, manage to complete law school but his concern for those who did not, and for those who finished high school or college without definite preparation for earning a living, continued.

He noted that many misfits entered the teaching profession as a last resort because of lack of training which would enable them to earn a living in other fields.

"It occurred to me," he says, "that when students left high school or college, if they had practical training in some field they would not be entirely dependent upon the teaching profession if they were not particularly fitted for it. They would have a much better chance to make their own way in the world. I call this the business point of view applied to education."

Today Georgia will honor Sen. George as the sponsor of every piece of federal legislation in the field of vocational education since the Smith-Hughes Act of 1917.

In recognition of these achievements, the State's vocational educators today will unveil a monument to Sen. George on the courthouse square in his home town of Vienna.

The monument is sponsored by and financed by the vocational educators of Georgia.

The first vocational education bill Sen. George sponsored provided temporary assistance for expansion in the form of a maximum appropriation of $2½ million annually for the five years from 1930 until 1934. This was the George-Reed Act and it was followed by the George-Ellzey, George-Deen and George-Barton bills. The latter came in 1946 and is an "authorization for appropriations" for approximately $29 million annually for vocational education.

It has helped make possible the vast program of vocational education in this state which in the last fiscal year provided training for 131,180 students. These included 60,442 in agriculture, 53,611 in homemaking, 18,370 in trades and industries and 8,757 in distributive education. An additional 40,000 veterans received special GI training through vocational education.

Sen. George is internationally recognized as an expert in the fields of finance, taxation and foreign relations. It is fitting that he should be honored, too, for his achievements that have opened a new future for many thousands of Georgians and many millions of Americans.

The Big Issues in 1951

The big issues which will face the General Assembly to be nominated in the June 28 primary are almost exactly the same as those which faced the hold-over session of last January.

A Constitution poll of candidates who are unopposed and therefore certain of nomination and election shows that tax revision, including repeal of the State property taxes, more money for education and a sales tax are the important matters to be dealt with.

That sounds like 1949.

Actually, all are merely parts of the big issue—better educational facilities and how to pay for them.

The Supreme Court decisions in the recent Texas and Oklahoma cases make solution of the educational problem more urgent than ever. And probably more costly.

The most significant result of the poll is that 14 unopposed candidates are in favor of a sales tax along with total tax revision to finance better schools.

A sales tax without exceptions is the logical answer. We believe it would be acceptable to the people provided a complete revision of taxes is effected.

It is good to know that 14 who are virtually certain to be in the 1951 Legislature are willing to accept the reality of the situation.

There is little disagreement as to the main issues. The necessity for action is too obvious. Voters still have time before the Primary to find out how their own candidates stand on these questions.

A Tax Cut— And a Tax Increase?

There is good news and also a disturbing note in the new optimism regarding chances of passing excise tax cuts which the House Ways and Means Committee has been wrangling over now for many months.

Word is that in exchange for an excise tax cut of $1,100,000,000 Democrats in a caucus have agreed to increase corporation taxes from the present 38 per cent, on most concerns, to 41 per cent. That would bring in $500,000,000 more annually and would go far toward meeting Mr. Truman's demands that revenue lost through excise tax reductions be made up in other ways.

The danger is that, notwithstanding present boom times, a higher rate on corporate earnings may serve as a depressing factor in the economy. It has been only a matter of weeks since unemployment was a grave problem. The happy turn for the better can be ascribed at least partially to the pent-up demand for durable goods resulting from the steel and coal strikes of last Winter.

Moreover, taxes are such now that the incentive for venture capital has been curtailed seriously. President Truman has adopted expansion of the economy as one of his primary goals. The economy cannot expand except with funds provided by persons who have saved money and see a reasonable chance of profit by investing them. Each rise in taxes decreases the chance for profit and to that extent retards expansion of the economy.

The logical approach, it seems to us, would be to effect the indicated reductions in excise taxes and cut spending rather than increase other taxes to make up for the loss.

A Gentle Tap Might Cut Him Off

Washingon State College is trying to keep long-winded speakers in line through use of a stop-and-go light, according to a UP story from the WSC campus.

An ingenious electrician there has rigged a gadget which flashes yellow five minutes before a speaker's time is up. When the time expires, the light changes to red. The professor who thought up the idea thinks that just putting the lights in front of the rostrum will have sufficient psychological effect to shorten a talk.

We doubt that seriously. If a motorist will run a red light even though to do so may shorten his life, better not count on the same signal to shorten a speech.

However, one could improve on the WSC timer by adding a mallet which falls sharply on the speaker's head whenever he fails to stop on red.

Resentment Grows

(Milledgeville Union-Recorder)

The demand for a public law banning the wearing of masks in Georgia is growing from day to day as more and more law abiding, conscientious citizens are determined to protect the rights of others under the law and not to allow our land to become a Fascist State.

The latest group to condemn the acts of terrorism by the Ku Klux Klan was the Warrenton, Ga., Kiwanis Club. That group unanimously passed a resolution condemning a parade of Klansmen.

Only a few days ago the Junior Chamber of Commerce voiced its determination to press to the utmost for passage of a Statewide law prohibiting wearing of masks in public at the next session of the Legislature.

The American Legion joined in the demand with a vigorous resolution in Macon to stop mask wearing.

Our lawmakers should heed the will of the people of Georgia and take forthright action on this matter at its next session.

A Jump Ahead

(Cedartown Standard)

Buck Anderson and the Polk County board of education seem to be a jump ahead of the Supreme Court ruling on the providing of equal educational facilities for Negroes.

For years a long-range program including consolidation of the 12 one-room Negro schools, has been planned for Polk County.

It is part of an overall program to improve all the schools.

In Cedartown, the board of education has promoted Cedar Hill High School to the point where it is one of the best small Negro schools in the state. A recent accrediting committee in evaluating the school praised it highly.

The situation itself is another argument for the passage of a sales tax. If the Negroes are to have good schools then they must help to finance them.

They must pay taxes. Very few Negroes in the city and county are forced to pay ad valorem and other taxes.

With the passage of a sales tax, they would pay a portion of the money needed to operate the schools.

Mouth of a Babe

(Cobb County Times)

The car was humming along at 55 miles per hour in a 35-mile per hour zone. Suddenly the driver spied two policemen ahead and applied the brakes instinctively. The jolt threw the little girl in the back seat forward. She chided the driver, "Daddy, why did you slow down so quick? Was it because you saw the cops?"

Thus it is that six-year-olds learn about the laws of safe driving, or rather unsafe driving.

Not all the safety councils in America can teach drivers to obey the rules of the road if adult examples of this kind are set—as is often the case.

If the reverse examples were usually set, there would be no need for safe-driving campaigns.

Meanwhile, the auto continues to be the chief instrument of murder in the nation.

Butterlegging? Who Can Be Sure?

The Federal Food and Drug Administration has asked Congress for a million dollars to increase its enforcement staff in anticipation of widespread violations when the tax on colored margarine expires June 30th.

Pity the poor taxpayer. He can't win for remitting.

Just about the time he figures he's going to save 10 cents a pound on colored margarine, along comes the government wanting to hire a million dollars worth of bureaucrats to police the nation's refrigerators.

Yessir, seriously warns the Food and Drug Administration, a wave of "butterlegging" well may be in the offing, the inference being that the nation will be overrun with furtive characters who instead of offering bathtub gin "right off the boat" will peddle margarine "fresh out of the cow."

To protect the public from such exploitation and, by no means incidentally, augment the size of its budget and patronage, the Food and Drug Administration apparently intends to add a fearless force of federal agents who will inevitably come to be known as the B-Men.

These Butter Inspectors, incidentally, are not to be confused with the citizens whose lapels bore "Chicken Inspector" badges in the "I Love My Wife But Oh You Kid" era.

I am ready to admit that it has been so long since the average citizen has had any butter that he can't be expected to recognize it when he tastes it. But when it comes to margarine-running, I think the government ought to follow a policy of caveat emptor. Most of the people who've got enough money to afford real butter probably didn't come by it honestly anyway.

George Bill Gets Two-Party Support

WASHINGTON—After weeks of labor by the Senate Finance Committee which he heads, Sen. Walter F. George finally laid before the Chamber this week the comprehensive bill urged by the administration for liberalization and expansion of the Social Security system.

This is one of the important measures which has kept the Georgia Senantor tied down to his post in Washington and prevented him from taking any active part in his campaign for renomination. He has been working on it constantly for a period of two months or more.

In presenting the bill to the Chamber Sen. George made a prepared speech outlining its provisions. He did not contend that it would make the present system perfect, but expressed satisfaction that its enactment would do much to improve the present law. As evidence of the nonpartisan support which the Georgian has been able to bring to the measure, Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, and Sen. Eugene D. Millikin, of Colorado, ranking Republican member of the finance body, both followed him in speeches giving it their indorsement.

Camp Pessimistic Although a member of the influential House Ways and Means Committee now struggling with the new tax revision bill, Rep. Sydney Camp, of Newnan, has joined the ranks of those who are growing pessimistic over the prospects of getting any legislation this session. He sees the definite possibility of the measure failing for one reason or another, chiefly due to the difficulty of raising substitute revenue to take the place of the reduction in excise levies being sought. For another thing, Rep. Bob Doughton, of North Carolina, veteran chairman of the Committee, is reported to have cooled off on the bill considerably since he was voted down in his own group on the proposal for reducing the taxes on the cheaper brand of cigarettes. Doughton, with an eye to favoring big tobacco companies of his native Tar Heel State, wanted all brands of cigarettes to pay the same tax.

Camp says the snarl that has developed in the Committee over several scores may well end up with new tax legislation being put off until the next session. As Chairman of the Committee which will have charge of the final writing of the bill in the Upper Chamber, Sen. George has served notice there will not be time left to pass a tax measure unless the House acts before July 1.

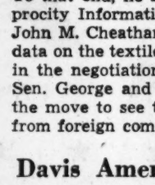

Textile Tariff Contrary to some of his misinformed critics in Georgia, Rep. Camp has taken an active hand in aiding textile interests of the State in preliminary negotiations over new reciprocal trade agreements with other countries. To that end, he recently appeared before the Committee for Reciprocity Information of the Federal Tariff Commission, along with John M. Cheatham, of the Crompton Mills at Griffin, in presenting data on the textile industry. The information presented will be used in the negotiations over the new trade treaty with Great Britain. Sen. George and Sen. Richard B. Russell also are co-operating in the move to see that Southern textiles are given proper protection from foreign competition.

Davis Amendment Acting on a recommendation from the DeKalb County Grand Jury, Rep. James C. Davis, of Decatur, put through an amendment to the National Rent Control Bill this week giving counties authority to decontrol the same as towns, villages and municipalities. No provision of the kind was contained in the bill as passed earlier by the Senate. Explaining the amendment, he said it merely "gives authority to the governing bodies of counties to decontrol unincorporated areas within the county upon the same basis that city governments may decontrol the territory within city limits."

Stone Mountain Loan Judge Davis is now opimistic over prospects for obtaining an early decision from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on the application for a $3,000,000 loan by the State Park Authority to develop Stone Mountain as a great tourist attraction for Georgia.

State park officials, he revealed, have just completed a survey on traffic in the area of Stone Mountain and have forwarded the report to the RFC here. He believes the report will be instrumental in bringing about favorable action on the loan.

Incidentally, the way was opened for another park to be added to Georgia's already large park system this week when arrangements were worked out for the leasing over a long term of years from the U. S. Department of Agriculture of the old Indian outpost at Fort Yargo in Barrow County. State Attorney General Eugene Cook and State Director of Parks Newton Moye negotiated the lease with Department officials here. The lease, subject to Gov. Talmadge's signature, will run for 50 years, with an option to renew for a like period at the end of that time. The State plans to make a memorial park of the area, consisting of some 2,000 acres, developing it for recreational and wildlife conservation purposes.

"High schools and colleges will send thousands of new workers into the business world as school terms end."—Trade note.

This is the merry month of June, the time of graduation . . . behind the students lie the days of work and concentration . . . the textbooks now are put aside, the sheepskins are presented . . . and parents find their bank accounts and pocketbooks are dented.

How beautiful the world appears, as youngsters, filled with vigor . . . go forth to match the greatest deeds and do some that are bigger . . . and then they take an humble job which always makes them madder . . . than hornets, when they're started at the bottom of the ladder.

How hallowed are the dear old schools, like lamps of knowledge burning . . . but one must leave them far behind before he starts to learning. . . . This is the day they waited for, with great anticipation . . . and now they can go out and start to get an education.

Editor Constitution: I want to express my deep appreciation to an unknown gentleman who found my billfold in Woolworth's recently and turned it in to the information clerk without leaving his name.

Sales Tax Fair?

Editor Constitution: In regard to your editorial in which you say "a sales tax without exemptions is the only fair way."

I disagree with you there and would like to ask what is wrong with a State income tax that would raise the amount of money needed by the State of Georgia. Surely, a person who pays the Federal Government, say, $500 income tax per year could not object to paying the State he lives in 10 percent of this amount or even 15 percent if needed. The most able to pay would pay the most taxes this way, which seems to me the only fair way to collect taxes.

The difference between an income tax and a sales tax is, with an income tax, the more exemptions or dependents you have, the less tax you owe, but with a sales tax, the reverse is true, the more dependents you have, or in other words, the more mouths you have to feed, the more you will spend and the more tax you will pay.

Do you sincerely think a sales tax is the only fair way? If so, fair to whom?

Rome. W. H. ARNOTT.

Editor's Note: Fair to all who receive services from the State, and to all who must pay for the services rendered.

City vs. Country

Editor Constitution: I was shocked when I read a letter from Mr. P. J. Latta in a recent Constitution. He states in his letter that people in the rural sections are less well informed politically and vote on little but their prejudice. If this is all he knows about the people in the rural section God pity him in his ignorance. The way he writes I'm sure he has never been any farther from Atlanta than Buckhead. I want to make him a friendly suggestion. Suppose you make a trip to Carrollton or Tifton and follow the rural mail carriers on the routes and watch them put magazines, farm papers and the daily Constitution or Journal in the farmers' mail boxes. I want to remind him that we have all the liberty that man enjoys on the farm and have time to read these papers and magazines.

We differ among ourselves when we elect our state officers but remain friends after the election is over.

There is very little division among us on the County Unit System. We know without this protection we would have no voice in our State government.

Fine Police Work

Editor Constitution: Permit me to commend the fine police work on the part of the College Park Police Department in apprehending and arresting the parties involved recently in the hit-run accident in which a five-year-old boy was killed.

As the father of a three-year-old boy, no crime appears to me to be any greater than to snuff out an innocent life of a child in such reckless and terrible manner. No punishment can be too severe in such cases.

The people of our sister city should be proud of their fine Police Chief Smith and his force.

Protest

Editor Constitution: Do you, Mr. and Mrs. Public, dislike the action of the Postmaster General reducing the mail delivery in residential districts to one a day? Then say so, by letter or wire to our two Senators and Congressmen.

Why should they pick on us wanting a continuance when other department heads are spending billions of dollars on such things as price support, like the Maine "spud" mess. The Post Office Department is a service department and should not be expected to pay its way.

The Dead-end Kid

JOHN MARVIN RAST

"Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." (John 3:3.)

In the recorded words of our Lord, there are no idle ones. Simply He spoke, using for emphasis various figures and modes of expression.

One little word, "verily," stands out. When He used it nothing could be added by way of assurance or admonition.

George Fox, the Quaker, tells that as a young man he used "verily" so often in his business dealings that it passed into a proverb: "If George says 'verily' there is no altering him."

Our speech betrays us, reveals character of positive or negative quality, consecrated or perverse.

Grant, Lord, that we may match our words with deeds. Sanctify us wholly, for Thy name's sake.

CHIEF OFFERS SLEUTH CORNER

Traffic Officer Irks Detective Sergeant

If that traffic ticket galled you severely, then consider the plight of an Atlanta detective sergeant.

The sergeant, a bit late for work, ignored a young traffic officer's warning whistle blast at Capitol Avenue and Memorial Drive. The sergeant wanted to move straight towards headquarters, although Capitol Avenue was packed with autos.

The traffic officer, who didn't know the sergeant, gave a second vigorous blast on his whistle, and waved the auto down Memorial Drive, the sergeant shook his head and pointed directly ahead into the packed riddle which was being untangled a block down by another traffic officer.

"Pull over to the curb," ordered the traffic officer producing his copy book. "Let's see your driver's license."

"Don't know whether I've got one," replied the irked sergeant.

"In that case," the traffic officer said, "we'll have to take you in."

At the station lieutenant's office the sergeant became indignant once more.

"You don't know who I am," he demanded of the traffic officer.

"Can't see that it makes any difference who you are," the traffic officer said. "You violated the law."

The sergeant identified himself as an officer and added: "I should take you to the chief."

Undaunted, the traffic officer suggested: "We'll both go to the chief."

The sergeant found Chief Jenkins none too sympathetic. In fact, the chief delivered a short lecture in no uncertain terms and wound up with:

"If you think you can do a better job on that corner . . . I can arrange to give you the opportunity."

The sergeant hastily declined the offer.

Driver Is Called No. 1 Traffic Peril

Walter Barham, Jr., 23, Negro, of 112 Taliaferro St., has the Atlanta police staff's nomination for the City's No. One traffic hazard.

Barham was involved in three traffic accidents within 50 minutes, patrolmen charged. After the last mishap—which occurred 15 minutes following the second—he was jailed for drunk driving.

Traffic Judge Luke Arnold took a caustic view of Barham's motoring antics. He assessed fines totaling $312 and revoked the Negro's driving license for four months.

9 Injured In Auto Accidents

Nine persons were slightly injured in auto accidents over the Atlanta area Friday night.

Three-year-old Billie Skinner, of 474 Pulliam St., S. W., was struck down on Crew Street near Memorial Drive, Ptl. J. R. Hardman and L. C. Pope said. He was treated at Grady Hospital for a bruised back. No charge was placed against the driver, O. J. Ford, 19, of Ben Hill.

Beverly Ruth Thompson, two, of 518 Luckie St., N. W., was hit in front of her home, Ptl. T. E. Gantt and Jack Langley said, but did not appear to require hospitalization. Three-year-old Lance Cheek, of 25 Circle St., N. W., sustained abrasions when struck by a car at Jefferson and Chestnut Streets.

Oby Ward, 17, Negro, of 464 Martin St., S. E., sustained a broken right leg when his motor bike rammed into the rear of a car in front of 330 Edgewood Ave., Ptl. G. T. Bennett and R. P. McGee said.

Two were shaken up in a crash at Cain and Courtland Streets. Sgt. C. W. Blackwell and Ptl. P. E. Edwards said a car driven west on Cain by Stephen S. Furse, 247 Chelsa Dr., struck another driven north on Courtland by Charles E. Blanton, Woodland farmer. Blanton and his wife, Mrs. Ann Clark Blanton, were treated for minor injuries.

An accident on Marietta Street at the Stockyards brought slight injuries to a mother and two children. Hospital records listed them as Mrs. Ethel Teresa Harper, 32, of 1727 North Ave., N. W.; Gladys Lenora Harper, 30 months, and William Jackson Harper, Jr., seven months.

MACON DISPENSARY

Medics Hailed By Admiral

The most-decorated man in the United States Navy flew into Atlanta yesterday and he was neither wearing nor talking about his decorations. Instead, he talked about "the excellent job" a Georgia doctor is doing in running a Navy dispensary at the fuse plant in Macon.

Adm. Boone

Rear Admiral Joel T. Boone, formerly with the office of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and now inspector general of the Navy Medical Corps, said the Navy dispensary at Macon "is so good I'd like to take it around the country with me to exhibit as a model." Lt. (jg) Allen Tate is in charge of the dispensary.

Admiral Boone, although wearing civilian clothes in Atlanta, is entitled to wear the American Government's most-coveted decoration, the Congressional Medal of Honor. He won it for service with the Marines in France July 19, 1918, when he saved the lives of innumerable American boys under fire on "No Man's Land."

The veteran Naval physician, who will retire next year after 37 years' service, served as personal physician to three U. S. Presidents, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. He described them all as "greater than most people knew." Harding he remembers as "the most gracious, the most considerate man I ever knew," and Coolidge, a reticent friend with a wonderful sense of humor.

Admiral Boone was accompanied to Atlanta by Comdr. Allen F. Bigelow, his aide, and received here by Richard Rich, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and officers from the Naval Air Station.

150 To Open Camp Fulton

Some 150 4-H Club girls from four Georgia counties will arrive Monday to open Camp Fulton for the Summer session.

The girls, from Johnson, Upson, Jenkins and Emanuel Counties, will spend four days at the camp partaking in a well-rounded recreational and educational program. The accompanying home demonstration and agricultural agents will supervise their activities.

The camp is located on a 40-acre site some two miles from College Park. It boasts a swimming pool and other recreational features. Dormitories and dining facilities will accommodate some 125 club members.

Camp Fulton is under the direction of personnel in Fulton County Agent S. D. Truitt's office. Truitt said instruction is provided to the club boys and girls in their particular projects.

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, June 16—(AP)—Jan Christiaan Smuts' son denied Friday that the ailing 80-year-old Field Marshal is premanently out of politics.

Smuts' son, Jan, said leadership of the opposition United Party as taken over by J. G. N. Strauss will last only until the end of the current session of parliament next week.

The elder Smuts is convalescing from a siege of pneumonia and his condition still is considered critical by his doctors.

NEW SHIRLEY

Atlanta Sees Gayle Reed Film Debut

By PAUL JONES
Constitution Movie Editor

Atlanta has a new name to take the place of Jane Withers and Shirley Temple. It's Gayle Reed.

That names belongs to a six-year-old Atlanta youngster who has all the precocious charm possessed by the juvenile stars of yesteryear, plus some more.

Gayle made her screen debut in her home town Friday when her first movie, "Johnny One Eye," a Damon Runyon story opened in World Premiere at Loew's Grand Theater. The young Atlanta charmer "came home" for the opening and she was joined by Pat O'Brien and Wayne Morris, her co-stars in her first screen venture, in a special stage presentation.

In the movie, Gayle performed without a bobble. Handkerchiefs were in evidence everywhere as she pulled at everyone's heart strings with a solid emotional tug. But, when Gayle went on the massive Loew's Grand stage and faced her public, she found that "the cat had got her tongue." But, this made an even bigger hit with the theater patrons.

"Johnny One Eye" is a typical Runyon story about gangsters who have a vulnerable soft side. Pat O'Brien, one of the screen's grandest troupers, plays a gangster for the first time in his screen career and he does a typically grand job. Morris is his gangster foe. Gayle is the daughter of a burlesque queen. And "Johnny One Eye" is a one-eyed dog who almost steals the show from the two-legged actors.

It's good entertainment and an especially good showcase in which to show off the talents of this Atlanta youngster.

Peru's Revolt Cooling Off

AREQUIPA, Peru, June 16 —(AP)—Peru's brief but bloody insurrection was all but washed up Friday as Government troops patrolled almost deserted streets. Arequipa was quiet.

The city's businesses were closed by a general strike.

No official announcement of casualties has been made but reports place the toll at 50 to 150 dead and hundreds wounded. No North Americans were reported injured.

Cooler and drier air will spread over the central portion of the nation and the Appalachian region. Scattered thundershowers also are reported due in the Central Plains and the Northern Rockies.

Ten-Year-Old Becomes Mother

CHARLESTON, Miss., June 16—(AP)—A baby daughter was born prematurely on May 25 to a ten-year-old Negro girl. It has been kept alive in a home-made incubator using heated bricks.

Birth of the child to Sarah Moore was revealed Friday. Sarah, whose 11th birthday will not come until October 3, lives in a rickety tenant farm shack with her grandparents.

The birth certificate lists Dr. E. W. Ryan as attending physician.

Grand Jury Indicts 2 In Hit-Run

Mrs. Idell Murphy, 38, of Fayetteville, and Edward E. Cook, 27, of Route 2, College Park, have been indicted on charges of involuntary manslaughter in the traffic death June 8 of David Anthony Stovall, 5, of College Park.

A companion indictment against the couple charged them with three misdemeanor counts of hit-run, failing to stop and answer questions, and drunken driving.

The Grand Jury dismissed an indictment fixing the charge as murder in the boy's death.

Mrs. Murphy was arrested by College Park police and was alleged by them to be the driver of the car. Cook was released under $1,000 bond and was the alleged owner of the car, attaches of the Fulton Solicitor's office said.

The victim was reported struck as he rode his tricycle along Columbia Avenue. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stovall, of 614 East John Wesley Ave., College Park.

Planting Time

Grain sorghums require around 100 to 130 days from planting time to maturity, and they can be planted until late June.

Penal Officials Ask New York Return Mincey

State Board of Correction officials Saturday began attempts to extradite from New York, Robert E Mincey, 22-year-old Atlantan, who escaped in May from the Telfair County Public Works Camp.

R. E. Mincey

Mincey, sentenced Jan. 16 to serve two to three years for auto larceny, was apprehended Friday in New York. Board officials said he was serving as autopsy technician in the Queens General Hospital.

The Associated Press said Mincey would fight extradition.

Mincey was arrested in August, 1949, on charges of taking a $1,750 auto from the Clyde Owens Used Car Lot at 617 West Peachtree St., N. E.

Immediately after being assigned to the Telfair camp in January, Mincey was made a trusty, J. B. Hatchett, Assistant Director of the Corrections Board, said. He added Mincey obtained some liquor and then was returned to custodial supervision. Soon thereafter he escaped.

Prison records show Mincey attended college for three and a half years, Hatchett said.

Buy-Out Charges Are Hurled By Opponents for Commission

By DICK HODGES

Charges and countercharges of "pay-offs" to withdraw from the race for Fulton County Commissioner was bandied between two of the candidates at the Tri-City political rally in South Fulton Park Friday night.

Speaking to an audience of more than 125 persons, Sam Jones, candidate for R. L. (Shorty) Doyal's commission post, charged that "a backer" of Col. Don Spicer, also a commission candidate, offered "in the office of a friend of mine to buy me out."

Spicer, coming to the platform a minute later, retorted that Jones' remarks were "surprising."

"I'm already $1,500 in debt because of this campaign, and all the money I get is coming out of my own pockets," he said. "And, as a matter of fact, I just heard that supporters of Jones were getting together to buy me out."

Both Jones and Spicer also took "pot-shots" at Doyal. Jones charged Doyal with voting favorably for "liquor interests" while on the commission. Spicer repeated these charges and attacked Doyal for "building a private road off Northside Dr. to his own two houses" with county funds.

Doyal said he would leave it to his two opponents to "sling the mud, and thereby eliminate themselves from the race."

He cited his record for recreational improvements in the county, the "main product of which," he said, "is good citizenship for the future."

Richard A. Thibadeau, candidate for Fulton County Representative in the General Assembly, attacked his opponent, incumbent Luther Alverson, for "not voting on 17.4 percent of the roll calls" in the last session of the Legislature.

Thibadeau promised, if elected, to introduce a bill forbidding strikes in public utilities; to attempt to repeal the "excessive" cigarette tax in Georgia, and to introduce a bill to "remove the State Highway Department from the county commissioners' control."

Alverson, in turn, defended his voting record by saying he voted on more roll calls than 95 percent of the representatives. "It's been my pleasure as Representative from Fulton County to fight for the Merit System, the Juvenile Court System, and the Minimum Foundation for Education," Alverson said.

Monroe Hearn, candidate for Fulton County representative, said that if elected in Muggsy Smith's place he would "ask the Atlanta City Council to give a shorter week to firemen who work 72 hours a week."

Atlanta Attorney Hoke Smith attacked the voting record of Rep. Jesse Walton, and asked to be elected so that "all of Fulton County would be fully represented."

Walton, referring to Smith as "Junior," said his opponent was supported by "special interests." He maintained that he was the candidate of the "little man" and said: "As long as I can cast a vote to help the little man, that's what I will do. I want to represent everyone regardless of the newspapers criticizing me straight up and down."

J. R. Parham, speaking for Quincy Arnold, chief Judge of the Civil Court of Fulton County, called charges of "laziness" made against Arnold "the most silly thing I've ever heard. He pointed to the efficient clearing of an increased number of cases under Chief Judge Arnold's direction.

Arnold's opponent, Wellborn Ellis, who was late arriving ot the rally because of a speech he made over Station WAGA, continued to berate Arnold for "not taking his share of the increased number of cases in civil court."

Sam F. Lowe, opposing Judge Robert Carpenter for Judge of the Civil Court of Fulton County, said, "You are entitled to have a judge of every court that can so order his life that the things that have happened to my opponent will not happen."

"One thing about me, they can't say I haven't done anything," Judge Carpenter said, attacking Lowe's youthfulness. "You can't take a boy and make a judge of him," he added.

Commission candidate Franklin Rodgers, opposing J. H. Aldrich, asked "why a 20-million-dollar county bond issue in 1946 was sold a year later with a million-dollar discount?" He also charged many county parks were in "a deplorable condition—knee-deep in mud," and wanted to know why the county spent "a million dollars for an airport out on the river."

Jack Troy, former Constitution sports editor, speaking for Aldredge, said the commission chairman is "running solely on his record." "A vote for Aldredge will be a vote for good government," Troy said.

Charles Hamilton, who is running for State Senator, told the group that the "City Hall group is trying to get me out."

His opponent, former State Sen. Everett Millican, reviewed his accomplishments when in office before and said he would try to get a law passed to "prohibit political candidates' pictures on telephone pole. I will also fight to have Fulton County itself made a Congressional district in reapportionment," he added.

Walter LeCraw, Superior Court Judge candidate, stood on his record of "14 years general law practice which has enabled me to understand to be just."

"As an independent lawyer I am more conversant with the feelings of the working people," F. L. Breen, also a Superior Court Judge candidate, said.

Judge Claude Shaw, incumbent, said the "only issue in this race is whether a judge can be fair and impartial and courteous to all who come before him, and my record shows I fell those qualifications."

Reuben Garland, seeking to succeed Judge John Whitman as Superior Court Judge, called his opponent the "slowest judge in Georgia."

Speaking for Whitman, Col. Harold Sheets charged Garland "with not caring for what office he runs for. He just runs every four years and always gets defeated."

Angry Mothers Shoulder Ball Bats To Guard Grocer Supplying Milk

PITTSBURGH, June 16—(U.P.)—Angry mothers kept grocer Carl Stonbraker's milk run open Friday with rolling pins, brooms and baseball bats.

They stood guard in front of the grocery in suburban Aspinwal after someone threw a brick through Stonbraker's window apparently because he has been supplying babies with milk since a strike by 3,200 AFL milkmen cut off regular deliveries. He has been driving more than 100 miles daily for milk for customers with children.

"If the person that threw that rock ever shows up again," one mother said, "we'll break his neck."

Neighbors were collecting $100 to pay for the grocery window and planned to maintain a 'round the clock guard.

Airline Hostess Wins Air Race

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., June 16—(UP)—Airline Hostess Betty Haas, of Scarsdale, N. Y., an attractive brunette, unofficially won the "Powder Puff" women's air race from Montreal to West Palm Beach Friday.

Miss Haas flew her 1948 Ryan Navion over the 1,475-mile course in an elapsed time of 10 hours, 43 minutes and 42 seconds.

She was the first of the 13 women pilots competing in the $2,000 contest to land.

SUBJECTS FROM MILKING TO MANAGING

GSCW Fosters New Trend in Education

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles describing educational trends in Georgia colleges and universities.)

By BILL HARRELL
Constitution Staff Writer

MILLEDGEVILLE—The daughter you are sending today to Georgia State College for Women is doing things her older sister of a few graduating classes ago merely read about in textbooks.

Your collegiate daughter, 1950 model, can learn to do everything the well-versed farm wife should know from milking a cow to managing a farm house.

Or, if she wishes, she can learn to chit-chat fluently in the native tongues of far-away places in approximately one-fifth the time it took older sister to learn the same art.

In the meantime, your present student-daughter can engage in activity ranging from baby-sitting to visiting the State Capitol to watch the mechanics of government in action.

It's all part of new trends in education that GSCW is fostering increased emphasis now is placed on actually doing the things the students of a few years ago merely read how to do. The new educational features are not being carried out, however, at the expense of other portions of the curriculum. Classes are still being taught—and by experts, too—in all the traditional subjects.

But it's in the new, streamlined phases of GSCW education that your daughter today reaps an extra dividend of practical knowledge.

Take the new farm operation GSCW is setting up. It includes a modern, eight-room farm house, two acres of land to be cultivated and four acres of pasture. The project is located in the city limits, at the edge of GSCW-owned Nesbitt Woods.

Six to eight students, along with one or two members of the home economics faculty, will live in the two-story farm house, appropriately named "The Georgia House" because all its furnishings and fixtures were, as far as possible, Georgia made.

Here girls will learn to be practical teachers of farm children and/or to be farm wives who will know how to carry out their part of a successful farm's operation.

They'll learn to care for cows and chickens on their college farm. There's a wood stove and an electric stove in the kitchen, where they'll learn to cook their own meals.

The girls will buy groceries and other household necessities. They will budget.

A man will be employed to do the heavy work around the farm. He will drive the tractor and do the actual milking of the cows, but the girls will be shown how to carry out these duties so they could cope with emergencies in later life.

Dr. Katherine Holtzclaw, chairman of the Division of Home Economics Education, is considering letting the Georgia House adopt a real, live baby for eight weeks to complete the education of its residents. She said it may be arranged with an orphans' institution or with parents who were planning to be away from home and could not carry their baby with them.

Dr. Holtzclaw said the baby adoption plan had been tried previously for short periods of time at the home management house the college operates near the GSCW campus. The house, in operation several years by the college, functions similar to the Georgia House farm project but lacks the rural facilities.

The college is planning construction of a canning plant near the farm project. Here the students will not only learn canning for their own use but will learn how to teach it.

The first group of students to live in the Georgia House included Lois Roberson, Ochlochnee; Jane McGee, Roberta; Ann Shelton, Valdosta; Betty Greer, Albany, and Virginia Hulsey, Buford. Miss Gladys Gilbert, of the home economics faculty, and Miss Ruth Maynard, director of Home Management program, are keeping watchful eyes on their progress.

The students will alternate with other home economics scholars in living there.

Dr. Guy Wells, GSCW president, and J. H. Dewberry, business manager, pridefully announced that students played a major role in planning, landscaping and decorating for the project.

Another GSCW home economics innovation is visits to homes of students all over the state. Here Dr. Holtzclaw and her staff spot-check actual living conditions to determine how nearly the college courses are meeting the needs of students.

But maybe your daughter has a yen for languages.

GSCW has the answer to that one wrapped up in a language laboratory so modern and efficient that the U. S. Office of Education has recommended that representatives of other Southeastern colleges come here to study.

Students and teachers at the GSCW Institute of Languages and Foreign Service July 21-August 25 will see how S. C. Mangiafico, professor of Modern Languages, has brought the machine age to his language students.

A variety of recording machines, transcribers and mirrors have produced a fivefold speed-up in time required for students to obtain a working knowledge of their language stubject.

Students listen to recordings of their own pronunciations, hear radio transcriptions and recorded lessons in diction and meanings of words from their instructors.

Practically all times of the day some of the students can be found in the language lab, brushing up on their lessons by manipulating the machines themselves and listening to recordings.

One girl can listen through earphones to a Spanish record. The girl next to her can study French through earphones plugged to another machine, and so on.

While all this is going on, Prof. D. F. Folger, of the Education Department, has been working out methods of making social science more interesting. Teachers from all over the Southeast will study his findings at the college's first workshop for social science teachers in June.

Prof. Folger now is using the resources of the community, the State and this section of the country to provide practical instruction for his students.

They have visited courtrooms, the Legislature and TVA. They have toured progressive farms and made visits to a variety of other places, all in the quest for the practical knowledge.

Folger has been conducting a workshop in Sandersville, in addition to his regular faculty duties, for approximately 60 teachers of Washington and neighboring counties.

Dr. Wells is justly proud of all these achievements, but at the same time he is equally gratified at the roles GSCW and the City of Milledgeville play in each other's lives.

Peabody, on the GSCW campus, is the girls' elementary and high school of Milledgeville. There's a fully qualified staff of experienced teachers on duty there, in addition to advanced students from GSCW who do practice teaching there.

More than 100 Baldwin County women have registered for a free course to be conducted by GSCW home economics teachers, with students as assistants. The courses, at the rate of one per academic quarter, include such subjects as interior decorating, clothing and nutrition.

GSCW is the meeting place of several civic clubs, which often draw on the college for speakers. Many plays and concerts on the campus are open to the public.

There's a nursery school patronized by Milledgeville tots, on the GSCW campus. Some students have performed extra-curricula jobs of baby-sitting.

GSCW had an enrollment of over 900 last quarter, which is slightly less than last year and decidedly under the approximately 1,400 students it had in 1939.

Dr. Wells said the decrease is not unfavorable when compared with similar decreases elsewhere. He says there is a strong demand from students that GSCW be allowed to confer masters' degrees. This would bolster enrollment to some extent.

Then, too, there's the trend toward co-education.

Don't be too surprised if, in the years to come, GSCW's traditionally feminine campus opens its classroom doors to young males.

Members of the latter contingent now get no further than the well-illuminated dating parlors or the equally well-lighted benches on the campus.

Churchmen To Visit Pastor in New Home

House Erected, Furnished By Dunwoody Flock

Members of the Dunwoody Methodist Church will pay their pastor a "pop call" Sunday.

The congregation will go into every room of the minister's house. They'll admire the new draperies, the new stove and frigidaire, the bedroom suite, carpets and porch rockers.

Members of the church have more than a passing interest in where their pastor lives. They built his home for him and furnished it with comfortable conveniences.

The new house is a six-room pre-fab building. On the day it arrived from the factory, 50 members of the congregation started work and they didn't stop until the roof had been put on.

The completed job took only nine hours. By doing their own work, church members figure they saved $5,000. Total cost of the home, furnished, approximated $8,000.

It has a living room, dining room, two bedrooms and a study for the pastor. A large kitchen and an all-tile bath are incorporated.

The Rev. James C. Moore is pastor. A rather proud pastor, his friends say.

The Rev. Candler Budd, Pastor of Hapeville Methodist Church, has been selected as one of 40 young ministers of the United States, to attend the new School of Alcohol Studies and Christian Action at Bloomington, Ill. The school is being sponsored by Methodism's Board of Temperance. It now is in progress.

Primitive Baptists of Atlanta and Georgia will meet at Indian Springs June 21 for the third annual all-day get-together. Discourses on the faith and principles of the church will mark the religious program. Basket dinner will be served.

Bethany Primitive Baptist will hold its annual meeting, Saturday and Sunday. Morning and afternoon services will feature services. Dinner will be served at noon each day. Elder R. B. Johnson, Jr., of Jackson, Miss., will be principal speaker. Elder J. A. Monsees, Bethany Pastor, will preside.

Members of the Atlanta Society of Magicians will attend services at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Cascade Methodist Church. The Society, which was organized 25 years ago in the home of Julian V. Boehm, outstanding Atlanta civic leader, will be honoring the Rev. James J. Sneed, who is President of the Magicians Society and Pastor of Cascade church.

Ralph A. White, Directory Supervisor for the Southern Bell Telephone Company, has been named Treasurer of the Southeastern Inter-Council Office, which represents five different Protestant organizations—the Federal Council of Churches, International Council of Religious Education, Home Missions Council, United Council of Church Women and United Stewardship Council. The five groups will merge in November into the Churches of Christ In America, representing 27,000,000 Protestants.

Dr. Manfred Ronchi, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Rome, Italy, and President of the Italian Baptist Union, will speak at 11 a. m. Sunday at Druid Hills Baptist Church. Dr. Ronchi is in the United States for a meeting of the Baptist World Alliance July 22-27. He is making a tour of principal Baptist centers in this country.

CONFIDENT LIVING

Those Having Faith Rise Above Failure

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

YOU CAN RISE ABOVE EVERY FAILURE.

This sounds like a tremendous, almost incredible assertion, yet I have weighed these words very carefully and I believe them. Some people might be tempted to substitute the word "some" for the word "every" but I think it belongs just where it is. YOU CAN RISE ABOVE EVERY FAILURE.

DR. PEALE

On what ground can I make so amazing a promise? It would be cruel to deal lightly with the tragedies we all face. A person who has failed finds life bleak and unhappy. It would not be an act of kindness to tell him he could rise above his failures unless it were true.

Let me illustrate the truth of what I have said by telling you about a friend of mine, a prominent merchant. He started out in life, as he puts it, "with seven hundred dollars and a wife." That was all he had, but he always remembers to add, "Well, I guess I did have something else; I had some good old-fashioned faith in God."

He opened a store dealing in merchandise for women. It was just a little place, "a hole in the wall." But, over the years, that tiny shop grew into one of the greatest establishments in the country and its owner became a leading citizen of his community.

Then trouble came, what with one thing after another, and one day he found that he had lost the business and just about everything else he had. So, at the age of 47, he was back where he had started. He had about the same amount of money, the same wife and, most important, the same faith in God. The big difference was that, the first time, he had been 22, and at 22 you are not afraid of anything in the world—you have the effervescence and confidence of youth."

But when you get to be an "old" man of 47, the youthful quality begins to slip from you. You are more likely to want to lie back and take it easy than you were at 22.

But this man did not just lie back and take it easy. He was a real worker and a real believer. He pulled back his shoulders and went at it again. At 47, he opened up for the second time in a one-room store. It wasn't easy going all the way and there must have been times when the path ahead seemed very dark, but, nevertheless, today his second store is larger than the one he lost. It is one of the great institutions in its field.

I asked a mutual friend to explain to me how this man could have made so dramatic a comeback. "He has some indefinable, resilient quality," I was told, "that lends him the ability to bounce back from failure."

Then I asked the man himself to explain this power of his, and this is what he said: "I will give it to you in my favorite saying, 'I can do all things through God who giveth me the strength.'" You could never persuade a man like this that any situation is hopeless. He knows you can rise above any failure.

In any of your own discouragements or apparent failures, always look carefully for those values which, if properly utilized, will help you to rise and develop a greater structure than ever before. In fact, it will help whenever tragedy or disaster seems about to overtake you to ask yourself the question, "I wonder what good thing God is trying to give to me?"

This is not a Pollyanna attitude, but a truth which thousands have learned from bitter experience. It will do you no good to sit down and bewail your fate and grow cynical. Never let yourself feel defeated; always look for the bright good which may be imbedded in an unhappy circumstance.

Even in the worst that can happen, there is always a hopeful answer. Faith will help you to rise triumphant and dauntless above every disaster. So remember the truth. Set it firmly at the center of your thinking. Make it the heart of your philosophy.

There is nothing this life can do to you that is strong enough to defeat you. With God's help, there are no hopeless situations. With God's help, you can rise above every failure.

2 Army Posts To Get Arenas

Large recreation halls designed for most types of indoor sports will be built at Fort McPherson and Fort Benning, Pentagon officials announced in Washington.

Army officials informed Senator George construction of the new buildings would begin in "four or five months." The Benning hall will contain 20,000 square feet of floor space and the Fort McPherson building will be 15,000 square feet. Designs for the buildings are being developed by the chief of Army Engineers.

In Atlanta, Third Army officials said the Fort McPherson building would be located South of Chapel No. 2, near Third Army Headquarters. The building, to be made of wood, would be large enough for basketball, boxing, badminton and other forms of indoor spectator sports. Cost of the building was not made known.

DIED DEFENDING HONOR

Canonization Rite Set for Young Saint

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

ROME, June 16—The canonization rite of Maria Goretti, an 11-year-old Italian girl who preferred to die rather than submit to the lust of a 19-year-old boy in 1902, will be held in the open air under the colonnade of Saint Peters Square at 7 p. m. June 24, the Vatican announced Friday.

The unprecedented number of requests for tickets to witness the ceremony, which was scheduled to be held inside Saint Peters Basilica on Sunday, June 25, led the Pope to make that decision, marking the first open-air canonization in Rome in more than three centuries.

Up to this afternoon the office of the Papal Master of Chamber, which is entrusted with issuing tickets for ceremonies, reported that it had received more than 185,000 requests.

Had the canonization taken place inside it would have meant that upwards of 150,000 people would have been unable to see it. In order not to disappoint them Pope Pius gave orders that a papal altar be constructed under the colonnade in full view of Saint Peters square and Via Della Conciliazione so that the ceremony might be followed in every detail by the crowd.

The extraordinary interest in the June 24 canonization was ascribed by Catholic circles to several reasons. First, Maria Goretti was the daughter of a very poor sharecropper living in the malaria infested Pontine marshes at the beginning of this century. She was therefore a "daughter of the people" as the Romans call those belonging to the downtrodden members of the working class. Moreover she died in defense of her virtue—an example of heroism which has captivated the imagination of Italians. Finally, a film which received first prize at last year's Venice Festival was made of her life. It was very successful and it of course made the new saint nationally known.

Underneath all these reasons there is the basic one, however, that, according to Catholic circles, the Holy Year has brought with it a revival of religious fervor.

Nearly 800,000 pilgrims were received by the Pope during the period from January first to May 31. Members of the Holy Year Central Committee estimated Friday that more than 2,000,000 pilgrims will have visited Rome by the end of October. The figure is expected, therefore, to be higher by the end of the Holy Year next Dec. 24—probably close to 2,500,000.

Thief Makes Hay As TV Shines

BALTIMORE, June 16—(AP)—Three persons watched a detective show on television Thursday night at the Irving Stadd home.

They now could use the services of a detective.

Leonard Stadd, a son, said while they were watching the televised detective stalk lawbreakers, a real burglar got into the home and stole $50 in cash and a $30 check.

He told police the thief apparently got in through a bathroom window. The money was in a purse.

Evangelist Holds Prayer In Zoning Board Meet

By HERMAN HANCOCK

An evangelist petitioning the Atlanta Board of Zoning appeals for permission to erect a tent for a revival meeting received permission, then promptly started his meeting among Board members.

Lifting his hand in a gesture of prayer, the Rev. W. F. Jamison said, "There is no better time than now." He then uttered a short prayer as members of the Board and those in the audience bowed their heads.

Jamison's tent will be at a Kent Street location.

The Board became involved in another church matter when a permit to convert a residence at 1070 Gordon St., S. W., into a church for Jehovah's Witnesses was studied.

Led by Milton Farris, attorney and Chairman of the Atlanta Public Library, residents of the area opposed the proposal. Mrs. M. Herzberg, President of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, and Mrs. Warren Bradley, former President of the Atlanta Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, objected along with a group of others.

Attorney Ross Arnold represented petitioners and at one point demanded a ruling on the question as to whether the church had a constitutional right to convert the home into a church. No ruling was made on the demand and the matter was held for further study.

Mrs. Herzberg said the Wren's Nest, ancestral home of famed Joel Chandler Harris, author of Uncle Remus stories, was near the proposed site and Mrs. Warren said the community does not want a group "which will not salute the American flag." There have been several court actions over the issue in past years and at one time an Atlanta schoolgirl, whose parents belong to the group, was expelled because of failure to salute the flag.

KA House Okayed

Board members approved erection of a Kappa Alpha fraternity house at Techwood Drive and Fifth Street after Col. Blake Van Leer, Tech President, and others urged it.

Elevators Speeded

Express elevator service will be installed in the City Hall beginning Monday in a new effort to speed up operations. J. Howard Monroe, City Hall Superintendent, announced elevator No. 1 will operate between the ground and the eighth floor between 8:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. except Saturdays and before and after the time limits all elevators will operate to all floors in order to fill or empty the building. He said the change is experimental only and that if it fails to work, he will attempt other changes. The change is being made because of congestion and with a view of speeding up service, Monroe added.

Bus Drivers Strike in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, June 16—(AP)—A Shriners' convention and a streetcar-bus strike added up to a lot of tired feet and much confusion Friday.

The Shrine convention doesn't start until Sunday, but a goodly portion of the 200,000 expected delegates are in town. They, with a million local daily commuters, were left stranded by a walkout of 4,000 Los Angeles transit lines employees.

The union (AFL Amalgamated Association of Street, Electrical Railway and Motor Coach Employees) wants 20 cents an hour added to its current wage of $1.47; The company has offered four. Weeks of negotiation, and one postponement, wound up at midnight Thursday with the union negotiators walking out but promising to be available any time the company wants to resume talks.

The City Council voted to request the union and company to go into arbitration. The company said "no comment" but the union president, D. D. McClurg, said "we regret that the company would not accept arbitration so our dispute could be settled peaceably."

Mobile Bus Talks End Fruitlessly

MOBILE, Ala., June 16—(AP)—Negotiators seeking to settle Mobile's city-wide bus strike broke up a three-hour conference Friday afternoon with the terse announcement that no progress had been made.

No date was set for resuming negotiations, and there were indications the strike might be prolonged. John L. Cone, Conciliator with the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service, prepared to return to Atlanta.

strike threat is spreading in the South.

Bus drivers in Macon are set to vote Sunday on whether they will join operators in Atlanta and Mobile in a walkout for higher pay. Tampa, Fla., also faces a strike if a wage dispute there is not settled.

Macon drivers called their strike vote after Bibb Transit Company President Linton D. Baggs said the company could not grant a four-cent-an-hour wage increase without upping fares.

Both Elliott and Walton complained they "had not been notified by the power company that the transit system had been sold and until a new purchaser takes over would have to look to the company for a contract."

Labor leaders, however, added they would "talk to anybody who could help settle this strike."

Child Assault Trial Monday

Clarence S. English, 33, indicted by a Clayton County Grand Jury in connection with an alleged assault on a 10-year-old Atlanta schoolgirl, will go on trial in Clayton Superior Court in Jonesboro Monday morning.

Sol. Gen. Roy C. Leathers, of the Stone Mountain Superior Court Circuit, said a conviction without recommendation for mercy would automatically carry the death sentence.

Dogs Bite 2; Rat, One

Two more children were treated at Grady Hospital Friday night for dog bite wounds, while a third was attacked by a rat.

Constance June Morris, eight, of 81 Hunter St., S. E., was treated for a dog bite on the right foot. Her father, Carl Morris, is a truck driver.

A dog bite on the left leg sent Dona Mae Copeland, eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Copeland, of 130 Brown Pl., S. E., to Grady for treatment. Her father is a carpenter.

Six-year-old John M. Hawkins, of Lithonia, was bitten on the right hand by a rat, hospital records showed.

He was brought to Grady by his mother, Mrs. Ada Bell Hawkins.

Navy and State Dept. Slowed Amerasia Trial, FBI Reports

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 16—A statement that the only substantial delay that ever occurred in the 1945 prosecution of the Amerasia secret documents case was at the direct request of the State Department and Navy is in the hands of the Tydings Senate Committee.

Testimony to this effect was given to the Subcommittee in secret session on May 31, it may be stated, by D. M. Ladd, an assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Ladd testified that on April 18, 1945, Hoover had signaled that preliminary inquiries were done and that he proposed at once to round up the Amerasia suspects who had been under surveillance.

But, the Ladd testimony went on, at a conference held that same day, Julius C. Holmes, then an Assistant Secretary of State, and Mathias Correa, then an assistant to the late Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal, had asked that action be held up for "two months or so."

They made this request, Ladd asserted, with the statement that the State and Navy Departments needed more time "for the purpose of determining the identities of other employees of their departments who might be engaged in submitting material to Jaffe and to determine whether Jaffe actually was obtaining this (secret) material for the use of a foreign power."

"As a result of this request," Ladd added, "the investigation was continued."

Philip Jaffe was editor of the magazine Amerasia, in the New York offices of which raiding officials found secret Government documents.

The disclosure of the Ladd testimony was the first public suggestion that there had been any official intervention to delay the Amerasia prosecution save for already published evidence that some unidentified official had vainly sought to suspend the matter pending the outcome of the founding convention of the United Nations at San Francisco.

This was at the end of May, 1945. Learning within a day or so of the incident, President Truman personally ordered the prosecution to go on with all vigor.

New DP Bill Is Signed By Truman

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—President Truman signed with "very great pleasure" Friday a bill extending the displaced persons law another year and opening the way for the entry of an additional 136,000 homeless to the United States.

The legislation liberalizes and extends for another 12 months a 1948 law which was due to expire June 30.

Up to 341,000 displaced persons can seek admission under the new law, compared with 205,000 under the expiring legislation. Some 153,000 DPs already have come here to carve out new careers.

The bill affects 74,744 persons other than those strictly defined as DPs. These include 54,744 persons of German ancestry who were driven from their homes in Eastern Europe after 1945; 5,000 was orphans who are adopted by Americans; and up to 15,000 refugees who entered the U. S. on temporary visas before April 30, 1949.

Mr. Truman signed the bill at a White House ceremony attended by lawmakers and Government officials connected with the program.

It makes Jan. 1, 1949, rather than Dec. 22, 1945, the cut-off date by which refugees from Eastern Europe must have entered Germany, Austria or Italy in order to be eligible for admission to the United States under the DP program.

Sylvester Gets Leaf Inspection

Growers selling at these markets voted recently for the service.

Spy Suspect Quiet, Ex-Neighbors Recall

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Alfred Dean Slack, the 44-year-old chemist now in jail in New York charged with passing U. S. explosive secrets to Russia, was a quiet "nice-appearing" neighbor to the residents of Fulton's Sandtown Community for two years.

Slack, his wife and one small son, lived in a small white frame house on a hill overlooking Cascade Road, near Bakers Ferry Rd., until the Spring of 1947, when they sold out and moved away. Two other men who apparently were employed in Slack's plastic manufacturing plant lived there with them.

They shopped like other families in a neighborhood store in Ben Hill, called for their mail daily on their way into Atlanta and were unusual only in their "reserved, quiet ways." They did not mix with the community in church and social activities but were believed to have been fairly friendly with one or two other families who have since moved away.

Mrs. S. H. Smith, Jr., who with her husband bought the Slacks' house, said she saw the previous owners briefly "when we came to look at the house a couple of times."

"They were all packed up to move," Mrs. Smith reported, and she didn't notice anything unusual about their manner or their possessions. "He did most of the talking. His wife was kind of quiet but their baby was small then and he started crying, so she didn't have time to say much. He seemed to be an educated person and very smart."

The sale transaction was handled through an East Point realty company and the Smiths have not heard from the Slacks since.

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—President Truman sent birthday congratulations Friday to 92-year-old King Gustaf V of Sweden. His message said:

"It gives me great pleasure upon this anniversary of your majesty's birth to convey to your majesty and to the people of Sweden the sincere congratulations of the people of the United States and my own good wishes for the coming year."

British Zone Red Youth Rally Talked

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

FRANKFURT, June 16—The Communist-led Free German Youths are planning to hold a mass rally in the British zone of the city of Essen on Sept. 1, The F. D. J. headquarters here has admitted that plans are being drawn up "for participation of at least 50,000 West and East German youths." The officials admit that the plans are still tentative but they assert that the British and West German authorities will permit the smaller scale repeat performance of East Berlin's Whitsuntide rally.

There was some doubt in the minds of German and Allied officials here that such a meeting would be permitted. It was made quite clear that the High Commission does not intend to issue the necessary interzonal travel papers to the Communist youths from the East. This, however, will probably have little effect on those East Zone youths picked to cross the border.

Harriman Is Shifted To White House Post

By JAMES RESTON

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 16—W. Averell Harriman, troubleshooter for the New and Fair Deals ever since the economic depression, will move into the White House in August as a special assistant to President Truman on foreign affairs.

In announcing this Friday, the White House said Harriman's long experience in international affairs would be valuable in helping the President unify the executive branch of the government, among other things.

Harriman, a banker and railroad executive who came here originally as an administratice officer in the National Recovery Administration, is now special representative of the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris. Milton Katz, former Harvard law professor and present assistant to Harriman in Paris, will take over the top ECA job in Europe with the rank of Ambassador.

President Truman has been talking privately about getting himself an assistant to act as a sort of combination fact-finder, policeman, and referee for the executive branch of the government ever since 1946.

In fact, he was on the point of naming Harriman secretary of the cabinet in 1946 when former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and former Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace got into a public row over policy toward the Soviet Union. Instead, Mr. Truman fired Wallace and appointed Harriman to the Commerce post.

Harriman will not have the title of Secretary of the Cabinet. He will, however, attend cabinet meetings, try to settle jurisdictional, political an dphilosophical disputes among Cabinet members, and in general take over (at least in the field of foreign affairs) the role once played by his former counsellor and chief supporter, the late Harry Hopkins.

President Truman offered Harriman the position as Secretary of State Acheson's deputy on the permanent North Atlantic Council when the latter was home here from Paris last week. For most of the last decade, however, Harriman has been abroad, first as lend lease representative in London, then as Ambassador to the Soviet Union and Great Britain, and finally as the top Marshall Plan representative.

Consequently, he told the President that while he felt his present job had now reached a point where he could leave it, he wanted to come home. He made this point clear, too, to Acheson, and while there has been some talk here this evening that Harriman's new post will reduce Acheson's authority, the fact is that Acheson proposed the switch and Under-Secretary of State James Webb drafted the announcement.

4 Blind Youngsters in Family Given Hope by Lighthouse

By GORDON SAWYER

Bobby Owens won't play in the All-Star baseball game Saturday night. Three of his sisters won't be able to see it.

But wait till next year.

The four youngsters, children of a tenant farmer, are all blind. Their parents couldn't afford expensive surgery to clear the cataracts from their eyes.

But the Georgia Lighthouse for the Blind found them, too late for this year's All-Star baseball game, yet not too late for a full life.

The four youths, son and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Junius Owens, of Rt. 2, Tallapoosa, entered Crawford Long Hospital Wednesday for surgery.

"Bobby always has wanted to be a baseball player," his mother said, "and he likes to throw his ball around the house now. But he's always losing it, and we have to hunt it up for him."

The seven-year-old youngster has help from the eyes of a younger brother in his dark quest for his baseball, but now he has hopes of playing his own game, seeing with his own eyes. And his three sisters likely will be able to watch him.

"I'm going to bring him a mitt and a ball in about a month," Lighthouse Director Tom Bingham told Mrs. Owens.

"Oh," she said, "I'm sure he will enjoy playing ball when he can see." And maybe Bobby can play in an All-Star game some day and help other unfortunate blind children see.

It is unusual for four members of a family to be blind, but there were five in the Owens family. One blind child, a nine-year-old boy, died recently.

"We heard about these four last Friday," Bingham said, "and they will be operated on this week. If things go as expected Bobby and his sisters, Rubynell, 6; Betty, 13, and Dorothy, 14, will see things like balls and baseball mitts for the first time in their lives.

Proceeds from the All-Star game, which pits the best ball players in North Georgia against the best from South Georgia, will go to the Lighthouse so that more—many more—unfortunate children like Bobby and his three sisters will be able to see and to do the little things other children enjoy.

The All-Star game and program begins at 8 p. m., Saturday night at Ponce de Leon Park.

Your Stars Today

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY
Sun in Gemini

General Tendencies—This is another good day, following the pattern for this entire weekend. Household decorations, sewing or artistic work may be begun at this time, the results being good. There is plenty of ambition and energy abroad today, although not too many of your efforts will bring in money. You are more apt to spend than to gain. It might be well to remember the slight possibilities of accident or danger which are strong for all the rest of the month, and cut your cloth accordingly.

If It's Your Birthday—It looks as if you might have plenty of hard work ahead of you. Gemini people would prefer getting things more easily and quickly, but that is not the picture for the coming 12 months. Even if you feel tied down by your surroundings, remember that luck is on your side. Any day you may find yourself greatly surprised by some fortunate turn which you did not expect. Probably that hard work which I mentioned is just a means of filling in the gaps between the more brilliant spots.

Furman BISHER

He's a Giant in His Own West Point

If Truitt Partridge showed up at University of Georgia, Wally Butts would use him for a paperweight. If he showed up at Georgia Tech, Bobby Dodd would probably tell him he's too small, and when they get too small to play in a Dodd backfield, that's about as small as they can get and still not be thrown back.

But down in West Point, on the border of the country they call The Valley, they figure that the bird-framed boy with the bird name is big enough for what they had in mind. There isn't too much the average coach can get out of the average 125-pound carcass. But you'll have to say that Carlton Lewis has made a giant out of Partridge, and Partridge, in return, has made a giant out of Lewis.

Truitt is about as shy a guy as they come. He was walking in high cotton yesterday, both liking and disliking it. When Sam Burke, the Georgia High School Association Secretary, called out his name at the Lions Club luncheon and prefaced it with the most remarkable record of all the young gentlemen playing tonight in the Lighthouse All-Star baseball game at Ponce de Leon, Truitt hung his head and grinned like a feller asking for his first date.

What Sam had said was: "This is a boy who has pitched three no-hit games this year and pitched West Point to the Class C championship in the State."

This is one year of baseball, for both West Point and Partridge. It was the town's first official high school baseball team. It was Truitt's first year of pitching. Oh, he'd thrown a few games now and then in a cow-pasture league, but never anything so formal as in a high school organization.

A Man of Standing He was likewise the quarterback on the West Point football team that didn't lose until it reached the Class B playoffs. You can see, then, that Master Partridge is some important citizen around his own hometown, 125 pounds nothwithstanding.

"I don't guess I'll get to go to college," he told me when the Lions were through lionizing the kids. "Nobody has offered me any scholarships."

Would he be interested in pro baseball?

"Yeah, but they don't seem to be interested in me."

Size again, naturally. These scouts have got to the point they won't look twice unless the prospect is seven feet tall and built like the Cardiff Giant.

So our boy Truitt is probably limited to West Point, unless he eats taters and fatback until he's as big as Flash, the senior member of our copy boy department. This, then, could be the biggest moment of his life, playing for the Lighthouse audience tonight.

Horses and People The arena was cleared out, the afternoon crowd had vanished and I sat on the sunny side at North Fulton Park, alias Chastain Memorial Park, a one-man audience as Steve Hill walked his Midnight Merry around and around until the lather stood out where the rein crossed the neck. It was a dandy sight for a guy seeing his first walking horse in action, which I was.

Offhand, I'd have said the walking horse breed was originated for people who didn't care for a jostle in the saddle. It gives the appearance of as smooth a ride as you get in one of these skyscraper elevators.

Walking horses, Steve Hill told me, stemmed from the trotting and pacing breed, the standard-bred horse. Tennessee is the walking horse capital simply because "a bunch of people decided to set up a registration office there. Only registration office in the world is in Lewisburg."

Steve, himself, has made a good living in the walking horse business. Horses are his business to a certain extent, but he calls himself a dairy farmer. His farm lies near the village of Beech Grove, about 50 miles south of Nashville. Steve spends only a small part of the year there. The rest of the time he's on the road showing horses, as in the Shrine show here this week.

It's a profession with him, just as training race horses is a profession with Max Hirsch and Ben Jones. Only difference is, there's not nearly the financial opportunity. Steve makes his haul training and selling, and then showing the horses he sells. Hill, for instance, bought Merry when she was about 18 months old. He trained her to perfection, sold her, then rode her to the official world's walking horse championship last year.

For Blue Ribbons "I got about 30 horses in my barn," the close-mouthed Hill said. "Some are mine and some are horses I'm training for other people. This show horse business is for people who got money to spend. I'm just a feller who trains 'em. I'm afraid it would be too rich for my blood."

Keeping show horses is strictly a sport. It's impossible to make money on them. The owner gets his return in blue ribbons, pride of owning a champion, and sometimes the pride in seeing one's own son or daughter handle a blue-ribbon winner.

In this show the largest prize a horse can take down comes to $230. That's a mite considering the thousands that often go into purchase price, van and other necessary equipment. You can bet that when a fellow lays out $25,000 or $30,000 for a show horse, the man's in love with them.

"You can show 'em and that's all," said Steve Hill. "They aren't for pleasure-riding. You pleasure-ride them and you ruin them."

Some go for golf, some go for motor boats, some go for billiards, some go for wrestling matches and some go for show horses. In the end the return is one and the same.

Willingham And Freeman Will Pitch

By JACK JACKSON

Thirty-two of Georgia's top prep baseball players are primed and ready for the first annual Georgia Lighthouse for the Blind All-Star game, scheduled to get underway at 8:30 Saturday night at Ponce de Leon Park.

The players—all graduating seniors—have been in town since Thursday and Friday took workouts at the Park. They are in top shape and ready to make their final prep game their best.

Coaches Lem Clark and Ike Aultman, of the Rebel team—from Regions One and Two—have nominated Jimmy Freeman, a lanky Albany righthander, to take the hill against the favored Northerners. Freeman posted a 5-1 1950 record and won the only Indian victory in the State Class B tournament.

The Constitution dispatched the following telegram Friday night to Graham Hixon, Gainesville High baseball coach. "Please bring Marvin Free's baseball pants when you come to All-Star game. None here big enough for him."

He'll be opposed by another righthander, Murphy High's Joe Willingham. Coaches Rod Colson, Howard McPeake and Carlton Lewis will send the veteran Eagle ace after his tenth victory of the 1950 season. He's lost three times.

Elsewhere, tentative starting lineups are ready. For the underdog Rebs, Owen Thomas, Moultrie, will be behind the plate. The infield lists Jimmy Dotson, Benedictine, at first; Gene Evans, Waycross, at second; Inman Veal, Lanier, at short, and Tom Black, Jordan, at third. In the outfield will be Jimmy Joyce, Waycross; Ed DeFore, Lanier, and Ken Murphy, Quitman, reading from left to right.

Those are the starters. The others—both squads have 16 men—will all see action before the night is over.

The Rebels will hold a final workout Saturday morning at Piedmont Park, while the Yanks will take it easy until game time.

The game itself starts at 8:30.

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—Rocky Graziano suffered a fractured left hand in training and won't be able to go through with his scheduled title clash with Middleweight Champion Jake LaMotta on June 28, the International Boxing Club said Friday.

The IBC said it hoped to come up with a substitute opponent for LaMotta that night and is dickering with three-time Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson, Laurent Dauthille, of France, and Tiberio Mitri, of Italy.

Robinson won Pennsylvania recognition as world middleweight champion by defeating France's Robert Villemain in Philadelphia, June 5. Dauthille is scheduled to meet Tuzo (Kid) Portuguez, of Costa Rica, in Montreal next Tuesday and Mitri is carded to oppose Joe Rindone in Providence Monday.

The IBC said Graziano injured his hand in training at Greenwood Lake several days ago. The fighter didn't think the injury was serious and said nothing about it until Friday morning when he complained that it was bothering him.

He told Comanager Jack Healy who took him to a doctor at Warwick, N. Y., for an examination. X-rays showed the break.

Graziano was treated by Dr. H. R. Freisinger at Warwick. Dr. Vincent Nardiello, of the New York State Athletic Commission, inspected the X-rays at Warwick and confirmed the bad news.

Jim Fuchs Smashes Own Shot Record

MINNEAPOLIS, Min., June 16 (AP)—Big Jim Fuchs, of Yale, uncorked a record shot-put, but otherwise it was all Southern California in Friday's 10-event trial of the twenty-ninth NCAA track and field meet.

The defending Trojans, seeking their fourteenth team crown, qualified 10 men for Saturday's 14-event finals and got a record-matching performance from Dick Attlesey in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Paced by Attlesey's 13.9 high hurdles romp, and easy heat triumph in the low, Southern Cal finished with four more qualifiers than Stanford with six.

Other leaders included dark-horse Yale with five, and four schools tied with four each, Morgan State, Occidental, Minnesota and North Carolina.

Fuchs and javelin-thrower Bud Held, of Stanford, paced the four defending champions in action today. Held whipped the spear 216 feet, 8⅞ inches.

Yale's Vic Frank, defending in the discus, was fourth behind Montana's Dick Doyle with 171 feet, 5 inches.

Swat by Sawatski Benumbs Barons, 3-1

By EDWIN POPE
United Press Sports Writer

Burly Swish Sawatski was Atlanta's best friend in an exceedingly inimical evening.

The 218-pound Nashville slugger's ninth-inning homer flung the Vols to a 3-1 victory over Birmingham and kept Atlanta's lead safe at four games.

Memphis pilot Al Todd snatched two bullpenners to preserve a 5-3 victory over New Orleans which put the Chicks two and a half games behind Birmingham.

Leading 5-1 entering the ninth, Johnny Perkovich ran into quick trouble. When Dick Strahs couldn't shower the blaze, Todd summoned Leo Goicoechea. The pudge Cuban stomped the rally at two runs.

Little Rock employed a wild seven-run seventh for a 12-5 verdict over Mobile. Milo Johnson distanced to win a natty five-hitter, although one of the blows was Lou Ruchser's two-run homer. Mobile used five pitchers.

Lefty Bert Flammini held the Barons at bay until the ninth inning, when they tied it up, 1-all. Sawatski stepped to the right side of the platter in the Vols' final frame and, with a man on, blasted an Earl Caldwell pitch high over the rightfield screen.

Dick Hoover's Clean Record Dirtied by Lookouts, 5 to 4

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

ENGEL STADIUM, Chattanooga, Tenn., June 16—The Crackers are in the midst of their first slump of the season. Positive proof was produced here Friday night when their cousins from Chattanooga squeezed out a 5-4 victory.

It was the third setback in a row for the league leaders, their longest losing streak of the campaign.

In nine previous outings, the Lookouts had rolled over eight times and right now, when Atlanta needs victories to land the All-Star game, the revamped Lookouts refused to co-operate.

Southpaw Dick Hoover, with percentage stacked against him as the Lookouts employed seven righthanded batters, went down to his first defeat of the year after registering six straight triumphs. It was Chattanooga which handed Dick his first loss last season after five wins in a row.

Much to the delight of 5,328 fans, one of the largest weekday crowds of the season here, the Lookouts lashed Hoover for two runs in their half of the first after Atlanta had kayoed ex-Cracker Norman Brown with a three-run barrage.

Brown, the first righthander to start against Atlanta in four games, signed a pass for Gene Verble, but Bob Thorpe, who later hit into two double plays, forced Gene at second.

Country Brown, who collected three of eight safeties doled out by a trio of Chattanooga hurlers, singled Thorpe to third and Bob counted as Ed Mathews forced Brown at second. Hank Ertman's two-baser and Ebba St. Claire's single netted two more runs and finished Brown.

Frank Quinn, the Yale bonus boy, rushed to the rescue and chalked up his first success since joining the Lookouts. However, it took some air-tight pitching by Bill Scott who came on in the sixth to get Quinn into the victory column.

A single by Junior Wooten, Willy Miranda's triple and an outfield fly by Andy Fleitas sliced the Lookout deficit to one run in the first. And in the third they staged a three-run spurt to ice the game.

Wooten also launched this outburst with a one-baser and Charlie Letchas, donning a Lookout uniform for the fourth time in his career, outlegged an infield roller. Fleitas promptly hiked his RBI total to three for the evening with a booming triple and crossed himself on Vic Barnhart's fly.

That was all for the Lookouts, in fact all they needed.

The Crackers scored their final run in the sixth as Quinn lost sight of the plate and issued three straight passes. However, Scott, after yielding a run-scoring single off his glove by Verble, slammed the door.

Scott induced Thorpe to bounce into a double play, leaving two runners stranded. And that was the last Cracker threat until the eighth. With two away in that frame, Ellis Clary sliced a single to extend his consecutive game hitting streak to nine and Manager Dixie Walker, pinch hitting for Hoover, walked. But Verble bounced to Letchas, leaving the last eight Atlanta runners on base.

SHORT NOTES—Southpaw Lloyd Hittle, who was purchased from Oakland for an estimated $65,000 by the Washington Senators, in 1949, will make his first start since joining the Lookouts in the second game of the series Saturday night . . . Harry MacPherson (6-3) probably will start for the Crackers . . . Pres. Joe Engel, displeased with his seventh-place club, had a mass shakeup Friday . . . He sold First Baseman Bob Reid to Anniston, signed Charlie Letchas, who was let out as Anniston manager, and released First Baseman Al Flair. All three are ex-Crackers. In addition, the Lookouts signed First Baseman Fred Taylor, fresh out of Ohio State, and took Catcher John Bird, a recent graduate of Lafayette, on a look . . . Pitcher Paul Walthour, ex-Tennessee cage star, was dispatched to Fulton of Kitty League where he will join Jimmy Jarrett, Tate, Ga., rookie. . . . In winning their first eight of nine games with Chattanooga, the Crackers outscored the Lookouts 59-30.

Angel Fleitas, Chattanooga shortstop, had the distinction of making the first four Lookout putouts in a row . . . Gene Verble crashed into Ellis Clary back of second after Clary had fielded Guyton's roller in the second, but neither player was injured . . . Bobo Newsom's 15-year-old son, Alan, is acting as Chattanooga bat boy . . . Hill and Boyd Entries Win

Sun's Big Star Delights; Show To End Tonight

By BERT PRATHER

Steve Hill, the Tennessee Walking horse trainer and rider from Beech Grove, Tenn., and Jack Boyd, whose interests runs toward the three and five-gaited beauties, continued to dominate the big stakes in the seventh annual Fulton-DeKalb Shrine Horse Show here Friday night.

Steve did not ride last night, but his entries placed first and third in the two-year-old walking horse class. Sun's Big Star, ably ridden by James Hill, was the winner, while Eddie, ridden by Gilbert Smith took third for the Hill stables.

Hill entries have won every walking horse event in the show and are top heavy favorites to take the big $1,000 grand championship in Saturday night's finale. Steve has Talk of the Town and National Champion Midnight Merry qualified for the stake, but it is likely that he will go after the blue ribbon with his ace, Midnight Merry.

Boyd, whose expert riding and finely trained mounts have been a sensation of the show, made two starts and as usual won both times. In the three-gaited junior stake, Jack piloted Bohemian Charm to first place over a classy field of youngsters.

He then came back in the junior five-gaited stake to make a show of the field with Kalarama Red Lilly. Kalarama was near perfection in four of the five gaits and captured the fancy of the crowd as soon as she entered the ring.

Boyd will be shooting for first places in both the $1,000 thre and five-gaited grand championships Saturday night. In the latter he will be astride the defending champion, Mighty McArthur.

The show winds up with a matinee Saturday afternoon at 1:30 and the grand finale Saturday night starting at 7:30.

Hal Newhouser Bats, Pitches Tigers To Win Over Red Sox

DETROIT, June 16—(AP)—Lefty Hal Newhouser beat the Boston Red Sox for the second time within six days as he pitched and batted the Detroit Tigers to a 4-1 decision Friday night before 54,086 fans.

Newhouser held the hard-hitting Boston club to nine hits and yielded their lone run in the ninth. He notched eight strikeouts with Johnny Pesky going down swinging four times.

Newhouser's bat played a big part in getting his sixth win as against two losses for his fifth-drove in what proved to be the winning run.

That action-packed fifth inning not only broke a scoreless deadlock but also touched off the most heated rhubarb in Briggs Stadium this year.

With one out, Johnny Groth walked and moved to second on Aaron Robinson's single. Dick Kryhoski then forced Robinson at second with Groth scoring as first base umpire Ed McKinley ruled Kryhoski had beaten the intended double play relay at first base.

Easter's Homer Beats As; Kellner Is Hurt

CLEVELAND, June 16—(AP)—Luke Easter's two-run homer in the fifth inning Friday night gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Early Wynn allowed only six hits in winning his fourth victory.

Alex Kellner, A's pitcher, was carried off the field on a stretcher after being hit in the left temple with a line drive in the fifth inning.

The blow knocked him out, but he regained consciousness and was hurried to a hospital for an X-ray examination. It could not be determined immediately how serious the injury might be.

Cardinal Lead Cut As Bums Win, 7-3

BROOKLYN, June 16—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers scored three unearned runs in the second inning and went on to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-3, Friday night to snap a seven-game St. Louis winning streak. The victory also cut the Cards' first-place edge over the runner-up Dodgers to two and one-half games.

The Dodgers scored four runs in the second inning off Red Munger with an error by Third Baseman Ed Kazak paving the way for the last three runs.

Enos Slaughter homered for the first Card run in the second, and Kazak accounted for the Cards' final runs with a two-run homer in the third.

Roy Campanella hit his thirteenth homer in the fourth to up Brooklyn's lead to 5-3. The Dodgers nicked Reliefer Al Brazle for their final two runs in the eighth.

The Cards loaded the bases with two out in the eighth but Johnny Lindell struck out. The Redbirds filled the sacks with one out in the ninth but Roe fanned Red Schoendienst and got Stan Musial to bounce into a force-out to end the game.

Lawson Little Retains Lead in Round Robin Golf With 21 Points

NEW ROCHELLE, June 16 —(AP)—Lawson Little of Monterey, Cal., retained his lead today in the Palm Beach Round Robin Golf Tourney with a score of plus 21 after 54 holes.

The greying Californian, who lead Thursday with a plus 15, toured the 6,569-yard Wykagyl Country Club course in 73-71 for a three-round score of 211.

Claude Harmon, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., moved into second place with a plus 18 on two fine rounds of 69-69 over the par 72 layout. Lloyd Mangrum, of Niles, Ill., advanced to the third slot, shooting a 70-65 for a plus 17.

Middlecoff picked up seven points and moved to the No. 4 position with 10 points on 70-69. Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y., was fifth with a plus eight and Jack Burke, Jr., who was second Thursday to Little, fell to sixth place with a 72-76 for a plus four points.

Ben Hogan, National Open champ, continued in last place. The Hershey, Pa., veteran carded 77-70 and fell to a minus 24.

Burke, the handsome newcomer to big-time golf, had taken the lead from Little after the morning round with a plus-17 score. Little, who twice won the British Open, lost one point on his 74 and slipped to third with 14 points. Harmon, on his first 69, advanced to third with plus 16.

Hogan, weary and showing little concern, skied to 77 in the morning and sank to 34 points behind. He rallied in the afternoon to drop off 10 points, but he's still far off the pace. Hogan had been tabbed the favorite before the 16 golfers teed off Thursday afternoon.

Paul Runyan, of Pasadena, Cal., took over for Vic Ghezzi, of Inwood, N. Y., on the second hole of the morning round Friday and came in with a 71. Ghezzi reinjured the torn ligaments in his side, which kept him out of last week's Open, and had to withdraw. Runyan also shot a 71 in the afternoon for a plus one point.

but festivities begin an hour earlier. The crack Carrollton High band will be on hand to provide music, and at 8 o'clock, Al Schacht, Baseball's Clown Prince, will present his comedy show.

Steamboat Johnson, Supervisor of Southern Association umpires, and Charlie Hurth, President of the Southern Association, will be among the diamond dignitaries present, along with scouts for every major league organization. Steamboat will open as the plate umpire.

Pres. Earl Mann, of the Atlanta Crackers, who had donated Ponce de Leon Park for the Lighthouse game Saturday night, said Friday that the field would be covered all day in case of rain. So the game will go on barring heavy rains at game time. Jitneys will run to and from the Park to acommodate local fans.

The favored Northern team lost a toss Friday and the Rebels will be the home team for the contest. The first of what will become Georgia's top prep attraction each year is upon us.

Kerr Awarded Trophy For Batter of Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 16—(AP) William Gene Kerr, 23-year-old outfielder for the Asheville, N. C., club in the Tri-State League, has been awarded the Spalding Trophy annually given the leading rookie batter of the year. The National Association of Professional Baseball League (the minors) announced Friday.

Kerr won the rtophy with a 1949 batting average of .401, playing with the Pulaski, Va., club of the Appalachian League.

The youthful player, who comes from Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, was at bat 449 times in 113 games. He collected 180 hits for 291 total bases, hitting 28 doubles, 22 triples and 13 home runs.

THE PREPARADE

Bass Pitchers Gave Up 22 Hits in 6 Games

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

It was about two weeks ago that folks were saying it was a shame that Bass high had no pitchers. Some thought Rod Colson's Blue Wavers conceivably might win the State championship—IF they only had some pitchers. Now that the Euclid Avenuers ARE champions of all Georgia, we'd like to ask what in the name of Abner Doubleday are Bobby Willis and Doyle Pair?

Slim, swarthy Bobby and angular blond Doyle did some pretty fair throwing against Georgia's best prep batters, we'd say, unless rigor mortis and total blindness suddenly enfeebled those previously lusty swatsmiths of Benedictine, Moultrie, Commercial, Lanier and R. E. Lee.

ROBERTS

Bass flingers allowed those teams only 22 hits in six games—four in the State AA meet and two in play-off tilts with Thomaston's Lee. Thirteen runs, several unearned, were all those clubs managed in six outings. Willis and Pair gave up just 19 blows and nine tallies in five games. It isn't bad pitching for a couple of young fellows they said weren't very good pitchers.

In fact, the only one who has been able to do anything with Willis for two weeks was a newspaper make-up man who cut our story of the final 3-2 win over Lee to get desperately needed space. Just for the record, Willis doled out four hits, walked one, fanned seven, pitched himself out of many tight spots and cracked a safety himself.

Good balance, ability to hit curve ball pitching and exceptional infielding were other ingredients that helped send Bass to Tuscaloosa for the Southeastern meet next week. Third Baseman Sonny Scott was one of the biggest little heroes of the Lee series. He socked four hits in six official trips, stole three bases in that last game alone when he tallied the first and last runs, and was a marked standout afield. Once he caught a grounder cleanly by diving full length on his stomach towards shortstop. He's the best high school hot corner guardian we've seen for several years.

TOURNEY NOTES: Tom (Red) Wood, Bass sub first baseman, clouted a batting practice pitch over the 336-foot leftfield fence... When Bass beat Jimmy Huckaby, 6-4, it was his first loss in two years. He had 13 straight wins. The Wave previously had besmirched the perfect two-year mound record of another Jimmy—BC's Dotson . . . Lee had a season record of 18-2 before the playoffs . . . Ed Reagin, Bass catcher and perhaps the best pro prospect in town, flied out once, Centerfielder Fred Trice taking it at the 402-foot mark. Reagin made a sensational one-handed catch of a popup against the grandstand in the first game. Pair fanned Don Harris, Lee's power hitter, the first two times up. Bud Duncan, hard hitting Silvertown star in summer months, also was whiffed by both Pair and Willis.

Frank Binford, Thomaston's mayor who's son Marshall plays for Lee, presented Miss Ira Jarrell, Supt. of Atlanta schools, sheets and pillow cases from Thomaston Mills. Thomaston Mills donates the park and lights for all Lee games . . . Sam Burke, GHSA secretary, of Thomaston, says Gainesville, Thomaston, Canton and Albany are Georgia's best "drawing towns" for high school baseball . . . Sgt. Adrian Wilburn handled the PA system in fantastic fashion, rooting for the home team out loud all the while. Samples: "Here's the little pepper pot himself—Jimmy Rogers—at bat. Here's Slugger Harris. Maybe he'll get a hit for us."

J. E. Richards, Thomaston's new athletic director, says Jimmy Lee, R. E. Lee first baseman, is the best running football back he's seen. The 187 pounder will be back next year. Otis Johnson, Thomaston ump, believes Joe Moore, another Lee player, will be the state's best basketball player.

Macon's Lanier high didn't beat the Georgia Freshman, as once reported. Lefty John Marshall, of the Bullpups, stopped Lanier on three hits, 4-1, instead. Jack Annis, of Grady; Charlie Maddox, bass guard and outfielder, and Owen Thomas, Moultrie halfback and catcher, will be at Florida together next year. Thomas will be shifted to end in football. Four members of the National High School Football Rules committee were at Thomaston, including Sam Burke, National chairman. Others were Sid Scarborough, Florida's LaFayette Golden and Alabama's J. Cliff Harper.

WIGHTMAN CUP MATCHES

Americans Win Every Set in First Round

WIMBLEDON, England, June 16—(AP)—Louise Brough, of Beverly Hills, Cal., needed only 30 minutes Friday to blast Mrs. Jean Walker-Smith off the No. 1 court at Wimbledon in the first match of the Wightman Cup tennis competition between the United States and Great Britain. Scores were 6-0, 6-0.

She never gave the British girl a chance and ran through the match as if she had another appointment immediately afterwards.

Only two of the 12 games went to deuce. The first one was the second game of the first set which was knotted five times before Mrs. Brough won it. love games.

Mrs. Walker-Smith won only one offensive point in the match, a fine placement just out of Miss Brough's reach. Miss Brough double-faulted three times on her service and had some trouble getting her smash to work at the net.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont, of Wilmington, Del., made the score 2-0 in favor of the U. S. by defeating Mrs. Betty Hilton, 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. DuPont was having difficulty with her service, got called three times on foot faults, and generally was slightly off her usual game. Mrs. Hilton came far better equipped than Mrs. Walker-Smith and showed a potent service that gained her two love games.

An ace and three beautiful placements gave Mrs. DuPont the final game of the second set after Mrs. Hilton had shown signs of evening the match. She had led at 1-0, 2-1, and 3-2 before Mrs. DuPont settled down.

Doris Hart, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd, of La Jolla, Cal., whipped Jean Quertier and Mrs. Walker-Smith, 6-2, 6-3, to give the Americans a clean sweep for the day.

The British team was helpless most of the time, especially when the Americans had control of their own service. Of the five games the British won, four were those in which the Americans had service trouble.

Lombardo's Tempo VI Gets Tryout Today

BALTIMORE, June 16—(AP)—Guy Lombardo, who likes slow music and fast speedboats, will try out his latest hope for a record-breaking craft on Middle River Saturday.

The famed orchestra leader will give his remodeled Tempo VI its first competitive test at the Wilson Point Regatta in the Glenn L. Martin Invitation Race. The race will be for 15 miles, nine times around a mile and two-thirds course.

Lombardo's boat, one of last season's regular competitors in Gold Cup races throughout the country, has been made five feet longer and its sponsons extended.

In trial tests at Detroit it has been clocked at 130 miles an hour with the throttle only three-quarters open.

Crazy Over Horses? -:- -:- Atlanta Proves It -:- -:- At Fulton-DeKalb Show

By YOLANDE GWIN

The lady came into the box, pulled up a chair and asked: "Do you mind if I put my radio on this extra chair? I've just got to hear One Man's Family, but I'm crazy over horses, too!"

And so were several thousand others who jammed the aisles, the boxes and the "bleacher sections" at performances of the Fulton-DeKalb Horse Show at Chastain Park.

They were all there. Whole families, with Mother and Dad taking turns baby-sitting with their own offsprings. Pretty young girls with their dates. Husbands and wives, visitors, exhibitors and several dogs who displayed their best canine manners, which in several notable instances surpassed some of the civilian actions.

Clothes from the feminine viewpoint, were as varied and colorful as the tricks and stunts staged by the Shrine Mounted Patrol.

For instance, there was Mrs. W. O. Moss, of Mile Away Farms in Southern Pines, S. C., who, with her husband was a judge in the hunters class. Mrs. Moss, who is a sister of Dean John Walthour of St. Philip's Cathedral—trailed out in the ring in a dotted sheer with one shoulder strap. And for the benefit of those who might think that Mrs. Moss was a bit underdressed or overdressed, depending on how you think of these things—can go snatch off one strap or slice off a shoulder and sleeve—Mrs. Moss has judged in Madison Square Garden in New York (which is tops in the horse world) which means two things: She knows her jumpers (and this doesn't mean a dress) and she knows what is proper to wear in the ring.

As far as could be seen—thanks to the bright flood lights in the park—a lady named Mrs. Tom Bradberry was the only one there wearing a corsage—she wore orchids on her blue outfit. Looked chic, too. And Mrs. Fred Cannon was the only one brave enough to wear an all-white outfit—even to shoes—and defy the clouds of dust which were presented free in each event.

Speaking of lights, we have it on the authority of none other than Mr. Chick Hosch, the show's publicity man, that those little yellow lights at the back of the top row of boxes were placed there to shoo away the insects who only fly by night. Mr. Hosch also informed us that all the schools in the county had been "robbed" for the chairs to be used at the show.

Two spectators who were enjoying each other's conversation about as much as the show were Gen. William Brougher, who served on Bataan, and who was also a "guest" of the Japs in one of their prison camps for several years, and J. C. Holton, former Commissioner of Agriculture in Mississippi, who is now with the Georgia State Department.

Just in case you had wondered about that organ music played during the events, here's the story:

It's played by a good-looking young man named Jimmie Richardson. He told us that following horse shows is his hobby, and he "thinks he's been to about 100."

"Mother (Mrs. T. M. Richardson) and I travel by car and we have a special truck for the organ. We were in Louisiana last week, and before we go back home to Shelbyville, Tenn., I suppose we will hit the tan bark trail a few more times this season."

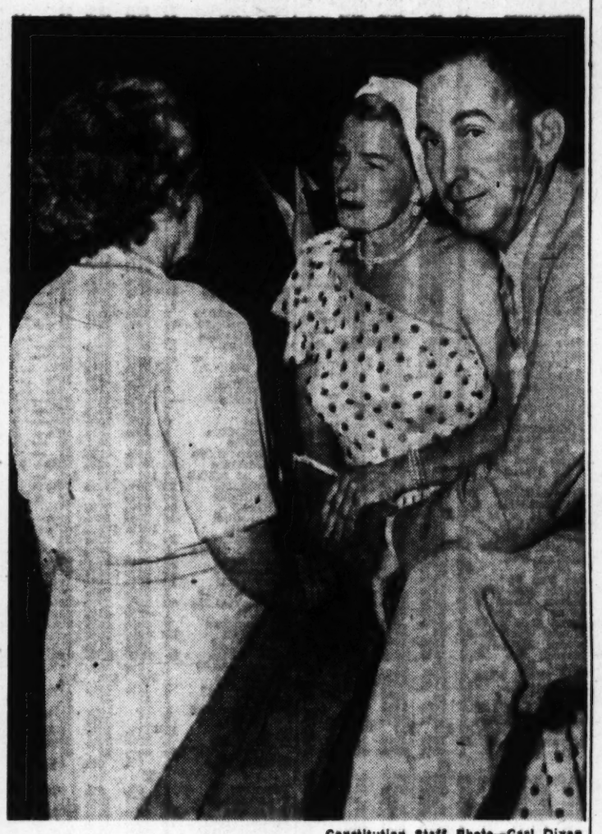

And what is the most popular tune he plays?

"Well, the audiences don't ask for many, I suppose they think I have certain ones to play when the horses are cantering, or racking, or trotting, but that's not true. I just play almost anything that comes to mind during the events and the horses seem to enjoy all the tunes, for they really step to music. But most of the requests from the audience are for 'Smoke Gets in Your Eyes.' I remember one little girl wrote me a note just before she was to ride and asked me to play 'Pony Boy' because she learned to ride by her Mother and Father singing that tune."

The show was being televised, but many in the stands were taking their own movies and one woman had her opera glasses.

"When the horses are running (racking, lady, don't you have any horse sense?) and I look through my glasses I just imagine I'm at the Kentucky Derby! It's more fun!"

And here's the closing fashion note: Five-gaited horses wear aid too—or do you think their tails grow that way?

Gains, Losses Balance In Quiet Stock Market

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—The stock market scarcely budged Friday in one of the quietest sessions of the year. Final prices showed a scramble of gains and losses, most of them a point or less.

Turnover touched a rate of around 1,180,000 shares for the full day, a striking reduction from some recent fast days.

Even news that the President had vetoed the basing point bill failed to stir up any business. The bill was designed to allow absorption of freight rates by manufacturers when establishing price schedules.

The approaching weekend apparently acted as a brake on trade as well as a desire to await Congressional action on a new corporate tax rate.

The market's steadiness Friday followed a sharp drop on Tuesday and Wednesday, and an unsuccessful try at a rally Thursday. On Monday the market on average reached a four-year high.

In the bond market convertible issues, recently in demand, backed down rather abruptly. A convertible bond is one which may be exchanged for common stock.

U. S. Governments held steady in over-the-counter dealings.

Lifted in the Curb were American Bantam Car "A," Blue Ridge, Cities Service, Creole Petroleum, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, Rotary Electric Steel, Pittsburgh Metallurgical, Niagara Hudson Power, and N. J. Zinc.

On the minus side were Barium Steel, Cosden Petroleum, Crystal Oil, Kaiser-Frazer, United Shoe, and Raytheon Mfg.

The Federal Reserve Board once more produced an encouraging appraisal of business trends. Thursday the board figured that industrial output in June would probably equal the post-war high.

Friday the board, in its annual survey of consumer finances, disclosed that consumer spending plans for 1950 hold the promise of record sales of new homes, motor cars and television sets.

The survey, done by the University of Michigan, indicated that consumers started out 1950 in an optimistic frame of mind over the general outlook and their individual prospects. They were a little more cautious, however, than at the start of 1949.

The board noted that "the extent to which these plans are carried out will depend considerably on what happens to jobs, incomes and prices, availability of goods and credit, and the general domestic and international situation."

Coal Production

WASHINGTON, June 16 — (AP) — The National Coal Association Friday estimated bituminous production in the week ended June 10 at 10,800,000 tons.

Production in the corresponding week of 1949 was 13,060,000 tons. In the week ended June 3 this year it was 9,391,000 tons. The low figures for last week reflect the general doldrums in the coal mining business. The even lower figures for the previous week reflect the Memorial Day holiday.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm Friday as trade covering and replacement buying met only limited offerings, following a sharp setback Thursday. The market was helped by reports that buying of some cotton textiles turned active Friday, following a lull of about a month. Substantial quantities of both print cloths and broadcloths were reported sold Friday for third and fourth-quarter delivery. On the scale-up trade hedging was extensive but readily absorbed.

Atlanta advices stated that mill buying of spot cotton increased during the week, covering a wide range of quality.

Cotton futures lost a good part of the day's advance in late dealings, touched off by a flurry of hedge selling. Support proved limited and this encouraged selling by New Orleans and local traders.

Futures closed 70 cents a bale higher to 30 cents lower than the previous close.

State Test Ad Draws 100 Answers a Day

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

The State Department of Commerce is receiving an average of 100 letters a day from out-of-state people who are interested in the tourist possibilities of Georgia.

These letters are in addition to other letters which are beginning to trickle in from out-of-state firms now considering Georgia as a possible location for proposed new industrial plants they plan to establish in the Southeast.

The tourist letters are the direct result of an ad which Clark Gaines, Executive Director of the State Department of Commerce, placed in the June 5 issue of Life Magazine. This was an ad of one-eighth column in size and the cost for a single insertion was $2,185.

Officials of the State Department of Commerce say that lack of funds has prevented them from embarking upon an extensive national advertising campaign to promote properly the industrial, agricultural and tourist possibilities of Georgia.

The ad was in the nature of a "test ad" and, as a result of the favorable response from people in other states, the officials hope to be able to induce the next session of the Legislature to appropriate sufficient money to enable the Department of Commerce to advertise the advantages of Georgia more extensively in publications of national circulation. The Department of Commerce now operates on an annual appropriation of less than $100,000.

The Legislature created the State Department of Commerce in 1948 to supplant the old Agricultural and Industrial Development Board. The offices of the department are in the State Capitol.

Sales Gain

Department store sales in the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank District for the week ended June 1 increased two percent over the volume of sales for the same week of 1949, the Federal Reserve Board, in Washington reported Friday. The gain for this district was in spite of a prolonged transit strike which has adversely affected department store sales in Atlanta.

Bank Clearings Up

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., of New York City, report that bank clearings in Atlanta for the week ended June 14 last, amounted to $230,200,000, an increase of 8.6 percent over the $211,900,000 volume of bank clearings reported for the same week of 1949. Bank clearings in Atlanta for the week ended June 7, 1950, totalled $218,500,000.

Food Index Drops

The Wholesale Food Price Index dropped six cents for the week ended June 14, according to Dun & Bradstreet. The Index is now 4.6 percent above the figure for a year ago.

Construction Lags

Construction contracts awarded in May throughout the United States reached a volume of $1,347,603,000, down less than one percent from the $1,350,496,000 volume reported for April, for the 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains, the F. W. Dodge Corporation reported Friday

For the first five months of 1950, Dodge reports that the construction awards in these 37 states reached a volume of $5,580,685,000, up 56 percent from the volume reported during the first five months of 1949.

Throughout the country, Dodge says that construction of buildings in the residential classification is showing the greatest gains.

Engineers' Claambake

More than 150 employees of the Atlanta Division office of the Corps of Engineers celebrated the 176th anniversary of the founding of that organization with a party and clambake Friday night at Chastain Park.

Standard Dividend

The directors of the Standard Federal Savings and Loan Association have declared a regular semi-annual dividend at the rate of three percent per annum for the first six months of 1950. This dividend will amount to around $183,000, J. L. R. Boyd, Secretary, announced.

This Association has paid 47 consecutive compounded dividends since its organization in 1927 and has thereby increased the value of its original shares from $100 to $287.35 each, Boyd said. He also said that the Association's unused credit with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, N. C., for the purpose of expanding its loan volume is around $5,500,000 The Association reports 3,121, loans with average unpaid balances of about $4,298 each—all with a total volume of $13,414,000.

Georgians To Study at Oak Ridge

Thirteen Georgians will be among 75 scientists from Southern universities and medical schools who will spend this Summer carrying out research at the Oakridge Atomic Energy Commission's Laboratories.

The Georgians are faculty members from Emory University, Georgia Institute of Technology, the University of Georgia Medical School and Agnes Scott College. They will be under the auspices of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, although they will work in all the Commission's laboratories.

Faculty members from Emory are A. Beatty, of the biology department; M. T. Clark, of the chemistry department; J. H. Goldstein, of the chemistry department; and R. Lagemann, of the physics department. From Georgia Institute of Technology are W. Breazeale, research division; W. H. Eberhardt, chemistry school; M. J. Goglia, mechanical engineering school, and L. D. Wyly, physics.

Others include W. F. Hamilton, of the University of Georgia Medical School, and W. J. Frierson, Agnes Scott chemistry department.

For the most part, the university faculty members will be concerned with peacetime aspects of atomic energy, according to Dr. Russell S. Poor, chairman of the Institute's University Relations Division. Many of them have their own research projects, while others will work on a problem already under investigation at the laboratory.

The bulk will be on duty at Oakridge National Laboratory, the AEC's principal research center. Others will work in research laboratories of the Electromagnetic and Gas Diffusion uranium separation plants and the institute's medical division.

Says M'Carthy Unethical in Lustron Deal

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 16—(AP) The receiver for the defunct Lustron Corporation Friday said U. S. Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican, Wisconsin, was "unethical" in selling Lustron a housing manuscript for $10,000.

"This is what I object to," said Receiver Clyde M. Foraker, of Columbus. He pointed to a sentence in the article which said the material was gathered during a 30,000-mile tour as vice chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Housing.

"What the Government pays for belongs to the Government," said Foraker in heated tones.

But, Sen. McCarthy contended, "I just sold to the highest bidder."

"Foraker, who took over operation of the $37,500,000 prefabricated housing plant in Columbus more than two months ago, declared:

"I'll bet he wouldn't have gotten it (the $10,000) if he wasn't a Senator."

Buyer Revolt Credited in Meat Decline

CHICAGO, June 16—(AP)—(UP) Declines in retail meat prices in the last week were reported in scattered cities Friday and experts said a housewife revolt was responsible.

In New York, pork loin roasts fell from 63 to 61 cents a pound, center cut pork chops dipped from 83 to 79 cents and leg of lamb from 79 to 75.

A United Press survey a week ago showed meat prices in the retail shops had risen drastically from the last year to some of the highest postwar levels. Steak, the survey showed, had soared to over $1 a pound in most large cities.

5 Anti-Histamine Firms To Drop Cold-Cure Ads

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—The government announced Friday that five big makers of antihistamine drugs have agreed not to advertise that their products will cure or prevent colds.

The firms had been accused of using "false and misleading" advertising in promoting the sale of the new preparations.

Under the agreement the companies can continue to sell the drugs and advertise that they will ease or stop cold symptoms, such as sneezing and running noses.

They also can advertise that the products are safe if used according to directions on the labels.

The Federal Trade Commission said the action results from FTC complaints charging the firms with violation of federal fair trade laws.

The five are Bristol-Myers Company, Anahist Company, Inc., and Whitehall Pharmacal Company, all of New York; Union Pharmaceutical Company, Inc., Montclair, N. J.; and the Grove Laboratories Inc., St. Louis, Mo.

The government agency—which serves as watchdog of the trade and advertising practices of business—started proceedings against anti-cold drugs on March 21.

It charged that the antihistamine preparations were being sold through "false and misleading advertising" and that they would not cure colds as claimed by the makers.

FTC also contended the products "may be unsafe and produce injury or harm to the user."

However, the agency backed down on that contention in its stipulation agreements with the companies. The agency said the firms will be permitted to say "that the product is safe if taken in accordance with the directions on the label."

The commission left the way open for a re-examination of the advertising practices in case "further scientific studies should show" that the drugs have no effect on the treatment of common cold symptoms.

The drug makers also have the right to reopen the case if new proof of the effectiveness of their products is discovered.

FTC also said it will take action to obtain similar agreements by other antihistamine manufacturers.

Fog-Bound Pilot Lands in Hospital

A private pilot from Stone Mountain decided the fog was getting pretty thick for flying Friday, nosed down to a pasture, saw herd of cows, pulled up and made a neat landing in a hayfield near Vincentown, N. J.

Floyd I. Glass, 49-year-old General Electric Company engineer, said he was flying home from Bridgeport, Conn., where he had taken Mrs. Glass to visit with her mother. Glass and his plane were unhurt.

Senate Okays 2 Key Defense Measures

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—Two key defense bills slid through the Senate Friday by unanimous vote.

One would extend the Government's synthetic rubber program for two years beyond June 30.

The other would authorize a three-year $135,000,000 program for building armories and other facilities for training the National Guard and Army, Navy and Air Force reservists.

U. S. Spending Courts Disaster, Hoover Says

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

CHICAGO, June 16—Financial disaster for the United States is in prospect unless the government curtails its spending policies drastically, former President Herbert Hoover said here Friday night.

Government taxes are already imposed to the hilt, Hoover declared. He told the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce that the average low-income family now paid $1,400 annually in Government taxes and deductions.

He described Americans earning less than $7,000 gross income yearly as the "sheep" who paid almost 80 percent of the cost of Government. To the question of whether taxes could be increased, he delivered a flat and emphatic "no."

Urging an immediate check on Government spending, Hoover said almost two billion dollars could be saved by four major reforms. He listed reorganization of the Federal civil service to save $600,000,000; modernization of the Post Office Department to save $500,000,000; reorganization of other Federal departments by function to save $300,000,000, and savings of $500,000,000 on unnecessary construction of Government hospitals.

Unless an immediate halt is ordered on spending, Hoover predicted the undermining of an economy which he said should provide one million new jobs annually. For 17 years, he maintained, Democratic administrations had continued the spending spree.

"Financing Government deficits by borrowing, if continued long enough, has only one end—inflation," the former President declared. "We ourselves have already decreased the purchasing power of the dollar by about 50 percent, and we are still creeping along that road."

26 Towns Set Plans For Housing

Twenty-six Georgia cities are ready to go with low-rent public housing programs financed by sale of bonds to private investors and designed to become property of local housing authorities.

Field Director M. B. Satterfield, of the Public Housing Administration, announced here that co-operation agreements made previously have been "executed," and cities "thus are ready to complete their projects at the earliest possible date."

He listed Georgia cities as Athens, Americus, Augusta, Bainbridge, Brunswick, Cedartown, Columbus, Cartersville, Dawson, Dublin, Gainesville, Jesup, Marietta, Moultrie, Rome, West Point, LaGrange, Cochran, Savannah, Cordele, Fitzgerald, Elberton, Quitman, Cornelia, Waynesboro and Camilla.

Co-operation agreements enumerate the services a city will provide for the projects. Agreements also define the amount a local housing authority will pay the City in lieu of taxes.

Satterfield said a total of 65 cities and towns in six Southeastern States have completed agreements.

Suit Claims False Arrest

COLUMBUS, June 16—(AP)—Muscogee Sheriff E. F. Howell Friday was named defendant in a damage suit charging false imprisonment.

Claude Bell, Americus construction worker, asked $3,000 in the suit filed in the Middle District, Georgia Federal Court at Americus.

Also named defendant was the Standard Accident Insurance Company, Detroit, Mich., which handled Howell's performance bond.

Bell charged he was held from March 1 to March 6 of this year in Muscogee County Jail. Court records Friday showed he was freed from jail March 6 on a writ of habeas corpus.

He earlier had been charged with passing worthless checks, records showed, and an attempt to pay a $25 fine levied in the case was rejected.

Court records further showed Bell had been wanted on two felony warrants from Florida at the time he was being held here.

ECA Rearmament Talk Stirs Unrest in Europe

By J. M. ROBERTS
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Talk of using Europe's Marshall Plan counterpart funds to help finance the rearmament program is calculated to revive long-standing continental fears regarding American intentions.

Many Europeans felt in the beginning that the Marshall Plan was devised as a harness by which to hitch their countries to the American wagon. The Communists made a big play on this, but subscribers to the idea were neither all Communists, all anti-American or all fools. Many of them just looked at the ties established by such a plan, looked at relations between the United States and Russia, and figured they were being caught in the middle of what might turn out to be a war.

They didn't get far. You don't shoot Santa Claus. But many among them, and among others who did not oppose the Marshall Plan but feared for some if its results, have clung to the hope that Europe would eventually be in position to shake off dependence on America and establish itself as a balancing force between America and Russia.

Russia has sought to foster this idea by a concerted "peace offensive," trying to convince Europeans who were on the fence that the U. S. was trying to organize them for war, while Russia represents the forces which desire peace. Europe wholeheartedly desires peace.

Its ministers came to the recent London conferences of the Big Three and the North Atlantic Pact Nations with advice to Secretary Acheson that the U. S. was playing too heavily on the impossibility of doing business with Russia and should pay more attention to maintaining its own reputation as a peace-seeker.

Since then American officials have been more careful to label everything they do with the olive branch.

Counterpart funds are those deposited by Marshall Plan countries, each in its own currency, to match funds supplied by the United States. Their use is very similar to the use of matching funds supplied by the individual states over here in connection with some Federal social welfare programs.

The U. S. controls five per cent of the counterpart funds, using them where possible in international economic deals in connection with the program. The remainder of the funds are used on economic recovery projects in the individual countries by agreement between the E. R. P. and the country involved.

Paul Hoffman says use of the five per cent, or any part of it, for military instead of economic purposes might actually tip the tables in favor of Russia's campaign to make Europe "neutral."

On another facet of the picture, too, there is an argument against diversion. The foreign ministers are all agreed that, regardless of how essential the military program may be, it must not be permitted to interfere with economic recovery. Economic soundness is recognized as the fundamental base without which rearmament cannot be achieved, peace cannot be arrived at, nor a possible war won.

Also, according to the best estimates, war in the immediate future is an outside chance. The economic war is a very present concern. There are those who will argue that a firm demonstration of unity and intent, with barely sufficient arms to back it up, is enough deterrent for a Russia which still counts more upon economic and political unrest than it does upon actual war for its program of universal conquest. And they will argue further that too much military preparedness might goad Russia into a "preventive" war of its own, just as Russia's apparent militarization beyond defense needs causes the West to fear aggression.

But there are few left who will argue that economic failure will not vitiate the West's entire defense program.

Johnson Studies Philippine Defense

MANILA, Saturday, June 17—(AP)—Defense Secretary Johnson Friday was "getting the facts pertaining to the defense of this part of the world as it affects the peace and security of the United States."

He and Gen. Omar Bradley, Chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, breakfasted with heads of American installations in the Philippines. The meeting was at the residence of U. S. Ambassador Myron Cowen.

Selling Wave

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—High grade convertible debt issues piled up big price losses in a strong selling wave in Friday's corporate bond market.

Losses for a small group of convertibles, which have ground out substantial advances in the past two weeks, ranged up to more than 3 points.

Consolidated Edison 3s were off 3½ points at 138¾ at the beginning of the final trading hour, while Consolidated Gas of Baltimore 2½s were down 2¾ at 131¼. Others behind from 1 to more than 2 points included American Telephone 2¾s of '87, Detroit Edison 3s, Laclede Gas 4½s, Phillips Petroleum 2¾s and Westinghouse Electric uncalled 2.65s.

The slide in these issues followed the action of the House Ways and Means Committee in adopting an amendment to overrule the U. S. Supreme Court's decision, in the so-called Korrell case.

Drygoods

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—Substantial quantities of print cloths sold for third and fourth quarter delivery in the Cotton Textile Market Friday. Broadcloths also moved actively. This marked a resumption of an active demand for lighter weight constructions for the first time in about a month when about 150,000,000 yards were estimated to have been sold in a little more than one week. Dealers said that buyers, who had adopted a cautious attitude, were apparently convinced that there was not much chance of textile prices declining in view of the rising costs of raw cotton. The wool goods market was firm, reflecting the belated reordering of Fall goods by manufacturers. Rayon goods were steady, with selling confined to spot goods resale offerings tightened up.

Linoleum Care

Never scrub your linoleum with any of the synthetic detergents commonly known as "soap substitutes." Chemists say these cleansers are so effective in removing greasy substances that they remove the very oil which keeps linoleums soft and supple.

Keeping Up With

ATLANTA

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Hilarious Comedian Bert Parks, Atlanta's gift to radio world's give-away programs, flew home Friday for his parents' celebration of their fortieth wedding anniversary. They're Mr. and Mrs. A. Jacobson, of 1270 Oakdale Rd., N. E.

Bert Parks

Millions of radio listeners over the nation know Bert as master of ceremonies for NBC - WSB's "Break the Bank" and CBS-WGST's "Stop the Music." The young Atlantan — who also has his own television show — literally becomes a year-round Santa Claus via the air waves and his give-away shows.

But fame and fortune haven't dimmed Bert's love for his birthplace. He's almost a walking and talking Chamber of Commerce as far as Atlanta's concerned.

After working stage shows and radio stations in Atlanta, Bert joined Eddie Cantor, and took over "Stop the Music" in 1948.

He and his wife — who flew down with him—will be back in New York in time for his Sunday radio show.

That was revealed Thursday as B. M. Vinson, President of the organization, and members of the Board of Directors, reviewed their record of accomplishments.

And, with that record in mind, the organization adopted a 1951 budget calling for expenditure of $58,000 to aid handicapped workers overcome their disabilities.

Naval Reservists

Atlanta Naval Air Station Thursday had 130 Georgia and Alabama boys enrolled in an eight-week training course under the Naval Reserve program. One hundred young trainees are from the Atlanta area, and the others are from Birmingham.

The reservists are high school boys of 17 years or over who will begin training as seamen recruits. They'll be able to qualify for one of the Organized Naval Reserve Squadrons upon completion of the course, and will become apprentice airmen.

Atlantans Graduate

Four more Atlantans have joined—or will join—the ranks of the college graduate clan. Three students have already gone through commencement exercises at Indiana University, and a fourth student will receive his sheepskin Sunday from Trinity College at Hartford, Conn. . . . The Indiana grads are Thomas Lee Caldwell, Gates Ensign Hunt, Jr., and Nathalie Marie Levy, and the Trinity collegian is Donald S. McClain, Jr. . . . Bill Creech, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Creech, of 1951 Graystone Rd., N. W., was appointed corporal in McCallie School's regiment in Chattanooga, Tenn. . . . Creech completed his second year on the baseball team, was on the boxing team, and B football team. . . . He'll be a senior there next year.

C., Monday and Tuesday. . . . Defense Secretary Louis Johnson invited Rauber and the others to attend a joint Civilian Orientation Conference. . . . Five members of Atlanta Civitan Club will attend the International Civitan Convention in Dallas, Tex., Tuesday through Friday. . . . Farmers Begin Curing Bright Tobacco in South Georgia Belt

By STILES A. MARTIN,
State News Editor

Reports from South Georgia that some tobacco is being "cured" is a reminder that it will not be long until the barns will be heated and the pleasant aroma will pervade the air throughout the bright leaf belt.

E. C. Westbrook, Agronomist of the Extension Service, University of Georgia, Athens, is of the opinion that prices may be "slightly" higher this year than last, the 1949 crop in Georgia averaging 40.83 cents a pound. He attributes this belief to "exports and demand generally have been good, therefore, the supply is in rather favorable position."

Stiles Martin

In 1949, there was sold on the Georgia markets 121,501,527 pounds of Georgia-grown tobacco, according to the report issued by the Georgia Agriculture Department, Guy D. Jackson, Statistician, this bringing $51,951,502.91 at 40.83 cents a pound.

According to the Crop Reporting Service, Athens, the acreage last year was 93,600. The yield was 1,250 pounds to the acre, an all-time high for Georgia.

Westbrook estimates this year's acreage at 100,000, and he thinks the yield may run from 900 to 1,000 pounds an acre, inasmuch as recent rains have caused "rapid improvement" in the crop. Tobacco already cured this season "for the most part, has satisfactory quality," he says.

The auction sale season in Georgia last year lasted from July 26 to August 26. During those days more than $50,000,000 was turned loose in cash in approximately 50 South Georgia counties extending from South Carolina on the east across the State to Alabama. Sales were held in 19 cities and 65 warehouses.

As the South Georgia farmer "lays by" his general crops, such as corn and cotton, he will turn his attention to curing his tobacco, and after the sale of that, harvesting the peanut crop faces him.

Bright leaf tobacco growing in Georgia reads like romance. It is one of the several crops developed when the boll weevils invaded the State prior to 1920.

Georgia farmers had heard of the damage this insect had done in states to the west, and gave some thought to what would happen when Georgia was reached. In 1917 there were 440 acres planted in South Georgia, production being 350,000 pounds, which sold for 37.82 cents a pound, or a total of $1,502,070.

By 1923, the acreage reached 16,000, with a yield of 9,103,000 pounds which brought growers $2,339,000. That same year, cotton production in the State fell to approximately 800,000 bales. The boll weevil had really "arrived," and the skeptical farmer was convinced of the insect's damage.

E. C. Westbrook

Tobacco growing has been a leading crop since. In 1947, the record high crop of 139,594,000 pounds, bringing the record sum of $52,940,000, was grown. Some four to six-million pounds of tobacco grown in adjoining states are sold annually at the Georgia markets.

Three varieties of tobacco are grown in Georgia—bright leaf, used in cigarette manufacture; shade, grown in the Decatur-Grady County area, and burley in extreme North Georgia.

Tobacco was grown in Southeast Georgia by the early colonists, but the crop was practically discontinued over the years, until the burley variety was grown in North Georgia.

Experiments were made in Southeast Georgia in bright leaf about 1910 and about 1914 the first tobacco warehouse in the State was built at Pineora, in Effingham County. Sales were held there two years, and then discontinued, apparently the volume not being large enough to keep it open for annual sales.

The farmers at Enterprise, Ala., erected a monument to the boll weevil because of the diversified program the insect wrought there. In South Georgia, that destructive insect is not memorialized in stone, but in the wide diversification of its crops, such as tobacco, peanuts, truck crops, plants and many other special crops.

MONTH'S GROCERIES COST ONLY 38 CENTS

Live-at-Home Plan Pays Off In Cash for Cadwell Veteran

By SAM CLARKE
Constitution Staff Writer

CADWELL, June 16—Could you buy groceries for 30 days for a family of three and spend only 38 cents?

Well, that's exactly what Army veteran Marlin Silas said Friday he did for the past two months because of his live-at-home program.

"No, we didn't produce everything we ate," the farm trainee declared, "but we would swap surplus commodities for the other staple foods we needed."

Many kinds of fresh vegetables are growing in the family gardep the year-round, and a small orchard supplies most of the fruits for the Laurens County farmer.

Last year Mrs. Silas canned more than 900 pints of fruits and vegetables practically all by herself, her husband revealed.

Four hogs are killed each winter and the meat cured to provide an ample supply of pork. Silas also raises around 75 fryers to eat and keeps about 25 laying hens.

The Silases not only produce most of their food, but they also concentrate on raising all the feed they need for their livestock. They have six dairy cows, five calves and six brood sows.

I like the tractor better than the mule because "it goes where I want it to," he mused.

The farming Army veteran spent 22 months in service in the Philippines and Japan.

In January, 1949, he enrolled in the institutional on-the-farm training class at the Cadwell High School which is taught by J. S. Perry. Marlin attributes most of his farming success to this training project. The farm program is administered by the Vocational Agriculture Division of the State Department of Education.

Marlin is operating a 182-acre farm this year, 150 acres of which he and his father own jointly. His crops include 11 acres of cotton, 16 acres of peanuts, 25 acres of corn, five of vegetables for market, and 20 acres of improved permanent and temporary pastures.

Four brood sows and a boar provide him with the nucleus of a good herd of registered Dorocs, and he is planning to increase his hog production. Meanwhile, he is looking forward to buying a Hereford bull and increase his production of beef cattle.

Proof of Marlin's serious thinking along the livestock trend is the fact that he has constructed nearly a mile of new fences, and greatly improved his pastures.

Last year he proved his point in pasture projects when he received 26 cents a pound for one of his Durocs which was judged Reserve Grand Champion at the Laurens County Fat Barrow Show.

Marlin also is a strong booster of Blue Lupine as a superior fertilizer for corn. He said he followed the Lupine with his corn crop, and the yield was considerably larger. So, this year he planted 22 acres.

"I think Marlin has one of the most well-planned, diversified farm programs in this area," Instructor Perry declared.

The Silases are thinking of buying the other half of their farm. Living at home as they do, it should be easy for the family of three.

4-H'ers Begin Sale of Crops In Hancock

Constitution State News Service

SPARTA, June 16—Hancock County Agent Joe Knox said Friday that there are more vegetable gardens in the county than at any other time since World War II when everyone had a "Victory Garden."

Most 4-H Club members will begin selling their vegetables on Saturday mornings as has been the practice for many years, Knox declared.

Local housewives are pleased that they can get fresh produce, and at the same time, the 4-H'ers are able to realize some ready cash from the sales.

County Agent Knox hopes to be able to construct a sale shed for the youthful farmers so that they will have a better place to display their wares.

Truck Crops Start Moving In Georgia

Constitution State News Service

VIDALIA, June 16—The South Georgia onion season has just about ended, but a variety of other truck crops are moving to market in volume, Frank Musselwhite, Manager of the State Farmers' Market here, reported Friday.

He said much of the onion production is centered around Toombs County, and it is only natural that most of the crop moved through the Farmers' Market in Vidalia.

A few odd lots of onions, however, are still trickling into the market but the bulk of the crop has been sold.

Although the volume was slightly lower than usual, it was reported that onion prices in general showed an increase.

Some of the truck crops now moving to market inelude watermelons, snapbeans, green beans, cantaloupes, tomatoes, greens and Irish potatoes.

Musselwhite reported that Brand Brothers, said to be the largest buyers of onions in the United States, maintained a buying office here during the entire season.

The new grading equipment not only made processing a smoother program, but it also enabled the buyer to obtain the best quality in all crops, Musselwhite added.

Mill Enthusiastic Over Tests of Empire Cotton

Special to The Constitution

GRIFFIN, June 16—A cotton mill manager in South Carolina who today is heaping high praise on the Georgia staple said, "where can we get more of this Empire Cotton? We could use it in large quantities."

The Empire variety of cotton was developed at the Georgia Agricultural Experiment Station near Griffin, and now is being grown throughout the South.

The Addison Plant of Kendall Mills, Edgefield, S. C., processed more than 150 bales of Empire cotton recently, and during the processing made a study of its qualities in comparison with cottons grown in the Southeast.

This company, which produces Curity nursery products and surgical dressings, is enthusiastic about the results obtained with Empire cotton.

The tests on this variety were arranged by Charles J. Bryant, Georgia Extension Service cotton specialist. For the past two years, Bryant has been carrying on a demonstration in the identification of one-variety cotton produced in some of Georgia's 100 percent one-variety communities. A special identification tag is placed on the bale when the cotton is ginned in order to follow the cotton from the gins on through processing in the mill.

"This plan of identifying cotton according to variety is just an additional step in improving Georgia's over-all cotton program," Bryant says. "Georgia farmers have been among the leaders in one-variety cotton production for a number of years, but in the past very little has been known about what happened to cotton grown in the State after it left the producers. This added step will enable mills to take advantage of known qualities in making purchases of cotton for their operations."

Bryant said when the cotton was classed at the mill, 28 percent of it was one inch in staple and 72 percent was one and one-thirty-second inches. Nineteen percent of the cotton graded middling color, strict low middling leaf and 81 percent middling.

The officials at the Addison Mill say, "Through examination of several lots of Empire cotton we have the opinion this variety is unusually even in fiber length and this, of course, is a valuable factor in good spinability.

J. D. French, cotton buyer for the Palmetto Cotton Division of the Kendall Company, of which the Addison Mill is a unit, observes, "Empire cotton shows unusually good characteristics and performance in comparison with other cotton grown in the same Southeastern areas."

In a letter to Bryant calling attention to the use of the Empire cotton in the Addison Mill, French says, "We hope you find these results of interest and value in promoting the ideas of one-variety cotton communities, which we strongly endorse."

Farm Family Day Is Set At Athens

Constitution State News Service

ATHENS, June 16—More than 200 farm men and women, boys and girls, who attend the third annual Farm Family Achievement Day on the College of Agriculture campus here Thursday will have an opportunity to hear outstanding farmers and agricultural officials discuss various phases of the State's agriculture.

Two outstanding farmers—Waymon Jones, Jackson County, and Arthur Lancaster, Morgan County, will appear on the program, R. L. Vansant, State Director of the Farmers Home Administration, said.

Lancaster's subject will be "What the Farmers Home Administration Has Meant To Me and My Family." Jones will give the response to a welcome to the campus which is to be given by Dean and Director Harry L. Brown of the College of Agriculture.

"A Balanced Agriculture" will be the subject of an address to be given by Associate Dean Paul W. Chapman of the College of Agriculture.

Farm Family Achievement Day brings to the University campus leading farm families in the State who have made unusually good farming records and debt payment records. A number of the 100 families to be represented have completed payments on their farms in around 10 years, although the schedule of payments calls for double or more this length of time. Other farmers who will be on hand for the special day have made unusually good records in paying loans for farm operations.

Vansant announced that the program begins at 10:30 a. m. in Connor Hall on the College of Agriculture campus and ends at 3:30 p. m. A recognition luncheon will be given for the farm families attending at 12:30 p. m. in the College of Agriculture cafeteria.

Dr. E. L. Hill, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church of Athens, will give the invocation and Miss Thelma Elliott, of Athens, will be in charge of the music.

In the afternoon, the men and boys attending the Achievement Day will tour the College of Agriculture farm, and the women and girls will be guests of the School of Home Economics.
